

Church Gets New Easter Outfit

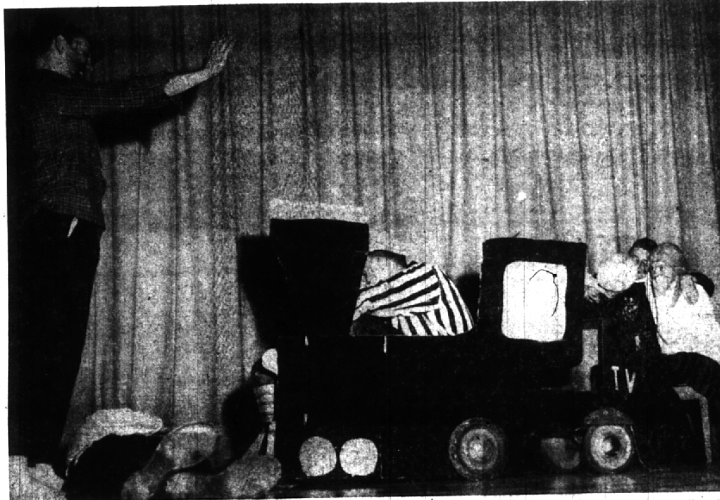

The latest step in the progress of the three-year-old Beautiful Savior Lutheran church, 5631 N. Adams, Bloomfield township is the recent re-furnishing of the sanctuary. The folding chairs shown above have been unfolded in the sanctuary for the last time. The new Easter outfitting includes oak pews, finished in pecan, with folding kneelers. Chancel furnishings are the same finish, highlighted with ecclesiastical symbols. Teak-colored carpeting has been installed throughout the sanctuary.

A new damask curtain of blue damask woven with ecclesiastical symbols centers attention on the altar; the altar cross has been gilded, to stand out as a focal point. A new baptismal font which will match the church furnishings and a sanctuary lamp will soon be installed. All of the new furnishings have been given by the members through memorial gifts. Rev. Donald G. Zill is the pastor of the congregation which numbers 160 confirmed and 275 baptized members.

A First 'First Night' At Groves

"Heh, heh, heh," laughed the villain; "Eeek!" shrieked the heroine as he tied her to the tracks; "Tocooooot!" roared the train. Then "Along Came Jones!" "Sop!" he boomed in his commanding hero's voice. "My hero!" the heroine shrieked again. "Curses, foiled again!" and the villain slinked away. "Along Came Jones" was one of the skits staged by Groves high school students at their first annual variety show. The scene above was watched apprehensively on television by the trio at left. Hero Felix Mock, 17211 Locherbie, saved heroine Tim Kroll, 21800 Hamstead, from a train piloted by Pete Craig, 32745 Lahser, all of Beverly Hills. "Girls" Charles Shepherd, 18432 Riverside, (left) and Ted Widlund, 18201 Buckingham (right), are consoled by Steve Billings, 18231 Devonshire. All three are from Beverly Hills. Accordionists (below) Steve Coquillard, 1800 Tahquamenon, Bloomfield township (left) and Clifford Williams, 2184 Eastman, W. Bloomfield township take a break backstage between acts of the light-hearted youthful first attempt.

In a Deep, Deep Cave in Virginia

Seventh and eighth graders of Cranbrook school, Bloomfield Hills, under the leadership of Mr. Pete DeWitt, pay a visit to the beautiful caverns of Luray, Va. The group is featured in the palace of splendors of the caverns, one of numerous large rooms in this huge cavity in the earth, the result of the action of water over a period of millions of years. The students also visited Williamsburg, Yorktown, and Jamestown.

To a considerable degree, an educator may be compared to a sculptor who, working in his studio, endeavors to shape his material into the form of what he visions. Does not the sincere, intelligent teacher also try to "lead out of" a pupil inherent, yet undeveloped, capabilities? Unfortunately, however, the teacher has to work with unpredictable "material".
