Often Misjudge Gifted Children

ANN ARBOR—The gifted child is often misjudged by both parents and teachers, says James R. Bower, lecturer in education at the University of Michigan.

His boredom may be viewed as "sassy" and disrespectful, and his curiosity as being "smarter than the teacher."

"ONLY WHEN THE problems of discovering gifted and talented children are faced and dealt with can schools move ahead effectively toward assisting all such children to obtain an improved education and toward encouraging them through counseling, guidance, and financial assistance to go on to college and a more productive life."

Before a school can attempt to challenge talented pupils, of course, it must know which children they are, Bower says. "More work needs to be done in recognizing superior talents in children."

Contrary to many critics of education, the waste and neglect of gifted talent in the schools has not been primarily a result of poor teaching and a weak curriculum, Bower feels. It is important for schools to decide which types of giftedness they will nurture, since a child may be gifted in one or several areas such as creativity, mathematics, science, physical activities, mechanical tasks, or in social leadership.

Skelly, Moore Exchange Vows

A Papal blessing was bestowed at the nuptial mass that united Patricia Ann Skelly and John Kent Moore in marriage Friday morning at the Queen of Miraculous Medal church in Jackson.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harold J. Skelly of Jackson and the late Mr. Skelly. The groom's parents are Mrs. John Edward Moore of Birmingham and Vera Beach, Fla. and the late Mr. Moore.

The Rev. Richard W. Kroft, cousin of the bride, officiated at the single-ring ceremony.

THE BRIDE CHOSE a gown of white silk organza, accented at the neck line with alencon lace and seed pearls and had a chapel train. Her illusion veil was secured by a Swedish crown of matching lace and pearls and her flowers were white orchids and stephanotis.

Honor attendant was Mary Ann Dwan of Washington, D. C., who wore a white silk organza gown. Junior bridesmaids were cousins of the bride, Joanna Reynolds and Nancy North, also wearing white organza.

STANLEY J. INSLEY of Detroit served as best man and guests were seated by Donald Degan of Royal Oak and Leo J. Brennan of Birmingham.

Mrs. Skelly chose pink silk tulle for her daughter's wedding and the groom's mother wore blue peonies. Both mothers wore orchids.

A wedding breakfast was held at the Jackson country club following the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner, also at the country club, was given the evening before the wedding by Mrs. Moore. Out-of-town guests attended the dinner.

Following a wedding trip to Jamaica, the couple will reside at 672 Graefelind road, Birmingham.

degree of maturity, and the quality of previous nurture are often important for predicting ultimate school success even for the gifted child.

"We may also need teachers' observations and judgments, carefully kept records of learning progress, and the developmental history of the child."

"In general, it has been found that superior talents show close correspondence, and that the child who is gifted academically tends to be also superior creatively, socially, and physically," Bower concludes.

"THERE IS NEED for better methods of identifying creative, mechanical, physical, and social giftedness, particularly among children who may be less bright academically."
