Beverly Hills Mother Saves 2 from Drowning Board Asks Moratorium On Payment

By JULIE CANDLER
AMHERSTBURG—Parts of this story are missing. Mrs. Hugh Muncie, of 31772 Verona circle, Beverly Hills, cannot recall some of the details because when you're struggling in deep waters for your life and two others, there are a lot of things you don't notice.

than a few feet of dog paddle. She plunged into the treacherous waters after them.
"THESE WAS NO doubt in my mind when I went in that I would be able to swim back to shore," she said.

speed causes a virtual whirlpool to form in the waters where the boys were diving. A wave of water rushes into shore, then a backwash surges outward again, and each time the whirlpool gets larger and larger.
SHE SENT eight-year-old Brian Muncie out to warn the boys. When they didn't come away from the dangerous point, she ran out herself, clad in a blouse and shorts.

WEST BLOOMFIELD—A precarious financial position has been created in West Bloomfield township by Detroit's refusal to permit flow from the Evergreen and Farmington interceptors into the city's sewer disposal system. Trying to alleviate matters, West Bloomfield's township board passed two resolutions last week.

Threats of Law Suits Fil Bloomfield Air

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—Within two hours Monday night, Bloomfield township's board was threatened with two lawsuits.

"IT CARRIED the three of us out into the current," she said. "I would have been able to swim to shore, the farther away we seemed to get."

TEN RESIDENTS of Club drive asked the board to rescind recent resolutions adopted on a petition to pay $800 each for their share of the assessment district. Spickeman Christian Anderson and George Gowdin told the board that they objected to paying for which Forest Lake country club and residents of Indianwood subdivision are paying as their share of the assessment.

Development of laterals has been slow because of the services of the Farmington interceptor are unavailability of the drain were "confidential" Detroit retaliated with refusal to hook the interceptors to its sewage disposal pipeline.

MONDAY night subdivision developer M. Scholnick asked that system be rescinded. The board's recent policy of requiring all new subdivisions to include central water systems was explained by township supervisor Arno Hulet and township treasurer Homer Case.

Money to meet payments on the interceptor is raised from residents served by the interceptor.

SCHOLNICK replied that he "did not intend to provide a central system for a 44-home subdivision in the township which might not take place for years." He asked for the ordinance under which the township was making water systems mandatory.

THE TAP... is charged when building permits for new construction are issued.

WHEN the board stood pat, Goodwin said the matter would be brought to court. To Hulet's remark, "How're you going to get township approval of the subdivision?", Scholnick had the last word which was "Well I'll find a way."

NEW BUILDING in the township has noticeably decreased with the dispute between the DPW and the city of Detroit.

Petitioners Protest 10-Story Apartments

BEVERLY HILLS—Opposition is climbing to heights characteristic of the buildings themselves as the Beverly Hills council prepares to hold a public hearing on a ten-story apartment proposal.

Councilmen Seek Way to Make McNutt Ouster Stick

SOUTHFIELD—The four Southfield councilmen who voted to fire City Administrator Robert J. McNutt should have a way to make his ouster stick.

Leslie Poland, association president for the Beverly Hills residents in question, said all Beverly Hills associations had had the right to fight the ten-story project. Poland said his group feels the proposed luxury-type cooperative apartments would stand a trend toward overly tall buildings throughout the village.

WEST BLOOMFIELD takes the position, as explained by Rehard, that since the Farmington interceptor serves Keego Harbor, Farmington, West Bloomfield and only a small area of Detroit, there is nothing to do with the Eight Mile drain and should be considered separately by Detroit.

TECHNICALLY, Monday's public hearing is to consider a change in zoning at the 13 Mile-Evergreen intersection's northeast corner. The proposal for rezoning from residential to a special cooperative zone classification was first made last December by Birmingham real estate man Lewis Keating and John P. O'Neill, Detroit attorney who is the owner of the 16-acre site.

Discussion as to what building additions the school board is recommending to relieve crowded condition at the junior and senior high schools was scheduled on the agenda.

Keating said this week that a professional zoning attorney, Harry Mountain, of Detroit, and a third investor, Detroit architect Charles R. Keating, had been retained to prepare the zoning application. Keating has maintained in earlier hearings that the dwellings would attract a desirable class of

IN DISCUSSING action forthcoming from West Bloomfield township, concerning Farmington DPW, West Bloomfield township is expected to join the municipalities served by the Farmington interceptor, which are against both the Oakland county and Detroit DPWs.

Suit Halts Franklin Hall Work

FRANKLIN—An invitation to "tell it to the judge" was formally issued to the Franklin Community association last Thursday by summons served by Oakland County deputy sheriff Wilfred S. Cooney.

A temporary injunction issued by Oakland county Circuit court momentarily prevented the construction of the new community hall in the village. PCA resident agent, William Madalin, said after chairman Ray Adams accepted the summons.

Trees on Maple Can't Be Spared, Engineer Says

WOODSTOCK can't spare those trees on Maple, though it pains many Birmingham-Bloomfield area residents to see the leafy giants felled.

Oakland county road commission engineer James E. Baynes, in charge of the $215,000 Maple widening project, said this week that 20 trees are being cut in the path of the road, shoulder or ditch. The road is being widened from two to four lanes on Cranbrook to Telegraph roads.

TO ADJUST for Bob's size changes as he grew up, Dan Reid's father received $34 for each performance. This was gradually increased to $80. Bob recalls that when he was five years old, he had no recollection of ever seeing or hearing it before.

Southfield Meets Non-Contractual Employee Demands

SOUTHFIELD—Non-contractual employees of the Southfield schools were a happy bunch Tuesday morning, approximately 700 employees were granted all their requests for compensation changes by the school board Monday evening.

A NEW survey was made after a road commission session with local residents. The survey found that 19 trees could be saved through changing slopes or raising ditches. All were on Bloomfield village's north side of Maple.

When Bob started in the role of Dan Reid he received $34 for each performance. This was gradually increased to $80. Bob recalls that when he was five years old, he had no recollection of ever seeing or hearing it before.

B'field Residents Object to Road

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—An agreement to meet with a representative of the Lone Pine Ridge property owners, the Oakland county road commission, and developers of Knob Hill subdivision was reached by Bloomfield township board at its Monday night meeting.
