THERE are so many interesting new books on the BOOKSHELF this month, we (editorially speaking) thought you might like to learn about a few.

OUR own respected George Romney appears in a biography by Tom Mahoney. Lively reading about the automobile industry, personalities, and above all, G. R. himself. You will enjoy this, we think.

JOHN O'HARA'S "Ourselves to Know" has arrived. It shows superb writing in a form not used before by him. The reconstruction of a crime reveals a fundamental mystery about the inner forces by which mankind is betrayed. You won't want to miss this.

IRWIN SHAW of "The Young Lions" fame gives us a new novel, "Two Weeks in Another Town". Set in Rome, the story is action-filled with a train of events which will keep your interest high to the last page.

IF you missed Yeaff Karsh's "Portraits of Greatness" at Christmas time, be sure to see it now. These photographic studies, with interesting commentary, are works of art by one of the world's greatest photographers. Every camera club should have one.

IF you're looking for a bride-to-be girl, the new "Good Housekeeping Complete-Book of Needlecraft" will give her practically all she'll need to know in years to come about sewing, knitting, decorative arts. Even tells how to darn a sock!

VINCENT SHEEN'S "Nehru, the Years of Power" is peep-time and provocative. It describes Nehru's crucial role in an interpretive review of his leadership in the light of present events.

ALSO available, the Official 1950 Tax Guide, and the Tax Guide for Small Businesses. You can't avoid 'em, so why not learn all the facts?

WE were started recently to learn how deep the inroads of "status seekers" has cut. A young friend, sixth grade level, advises she selects her reading material from the library by studying names of previous borrowers on the book card before making her own selection. 'Cout la...
