THE BILLBOARD

BLOOMFIELD HILLS HIGH

He's Billboarding The Hi-Y at BHHS

By MIKE ZWEIG
BHHS Correspondent

The 40 members of the Bloomfield Hills Hi-Y met recently and approved the new constitution.

Also discussed at the meeting were various activities that the organization will sponsor. A group of boys recently went caroling at a local old-folks home.

IT WAS decided to help out at a local orphanage by regular entertaining and playing with the children. Still in the local interest, the group will back the coming school March of Dimes drive. A group of boys already worked selling Christmas trees.

But the Hi-Y also serves as a means and a place for recreation. Every Monday evening, the members play basketball for some other and was, as usual, a tremendous success. Congratulations to Mr. Luchman and Mr. Tollen for the fine work done by the choir and the band. Those who attended (and even those who did not) should credit Bruce Geyman for his artistic contribution in the form of stage decorations. They completed the evenings in perfection.

The Student Council dance, the Holiday Hop, was another in the line of recent successes. Closely following that dance was the Cotillion at Bloomfield Hills Country club and a Teen club dance on Dec. 29 at BHHS. These dances and many parties, along with scattered homework even, made the Christmas vacation speed by.

Exam Dates Set For New Rice High

Entrance examinations for boys in the eighth grade who wish to attend the new Rice High will be given on Saturday, Jan. 16.

Boys at Holy Name who wish to attend will meet at Marian high for examinations. A quota of 240 boys will be accepted for the freshman class from five parochial schools in this area.

An NCO?

CULVER, Ind.—Richard Donald Handson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Handson, of 1079 Puritan, Birmingham, is one of the 21 cadets at Culver Military academy who have been promoted this fall to the rank of lance corporal.

They Et Tu

Seventh graders at Bloomfield Hills junior high school learn a little history first-hand at their Roman banquet. The festivities were an outgrowth of classroom studies. It all started with the social studies class of Mrs. Gloria Sprout. Eventually other seventh-grade English, social studies and speech classes got in on the Roman holiday. About 100 students danced, had dinner, put on a show and saw a movie. Here Wayne Gallo gets the imperial treatment from Gandy Herschberger (from left), Lynn Homewood, and Sandy Tauber.

Togetherness At This Camp

A weekend experience is in store for the families that spend Jan. 16 and 17 and Camp Ohlyesa. All that is enjoyable in camping with the family is increased by facilities available.

There is skiing, sledding, ice skating in addition to a family campfire in the evening, served meals and sitters for pre-schoolers. On Sunday morning all will be able to worship together.

There may still be openings. Call the YMCA for further information.

YMAC

A new club which is expected to be heard from in the future is the YMAC, literally interpreted as the Young Men's Auto Club. The name was tentatively suggested subject to the approval of all the members. Meetings are the use of the YMAC. Any teen regularly scheduled Monday evening who share an interest in ings at 7:30 p.m. in the YMCA. motors and are interested have Through the efforts of Mr. Ger- been invited to attend a meeting and Joyn, their advisor, a cut at the YMCA each Monday evening engine has been secured and ring.

He's Going Back To High School

EASTON, Pa.—Richard D. Rooney, assistant director of admissions at Lafayette college, will visit secondary schools in the Detroit area on January 11-13 to talk to prospective college students. Jan. 12 he is scheduled to visit the Cranbrook school in Bloomfield Hills, the Detroit Country Day school, and Stahelin high school.

On January 13 he will talk to students at Grosse Pointe high school, Grosse Pointe university school, and Pontiac high school.
