

Cranbrook Corridor

By DON CUMMINGS

Mr. William Sheehan, news director of radio station WJR in Detroit, spoke to a Cranbrook assembly on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 18. Mr. Sheehan was one of the news correspondents on President Eisenhower's recent good-will mission, and his speech was concerned solely with some of the more interesting highlights of the trip.

Mr. Sheehan stated his own impressions of each of the cities which were visited, and stressed the fact that President Eisenhower accomplished just what he set out to do—establish good will among our allies.

He also said that even though the President's working day was often frighteningly long, Mr. Eisenhower looked just as well when he returned to Washington as he did when he left. Mr. Sheehan's speech was enjoyed and appreciated by all Cranbrook students and several masters.

The list of winners in the Jasper Reid Writing Contest was announced the same day. First prize winners were awarded five dollars each on winning paper, and those students receiving honorable mentions and commendations were awarded certificates of merit.

Mr. Carl Wonnberger, chairman of the English department, announced the awards.

Southfield High 'Oklahoma' Far Away, But Coming

Although Southfield High will not produce Oklahoma until more than three months from now—April 21-22-23—production of the famous Rogers and Hammerstein musical is already under way with almost everyone in the school contributing in some way to its success.

Faculty and student directors have been chosen, scripts and vocal scores have been made available for prospective members of the cast, and clubs and other school groups have offered assistance.

First formal action took place Tuesday, Jan. 19, when students attended a general meeting in the school auditorium, then divided into their specialized areas. Auditions began Jan. 20.

Heads of committees already chosen are: costumes, Mrs. Barbara Start; program, Mr. Richard Welkenbach; makeup, Miss Virginia Hammond; business and tickets, Mr. James Vincent; rehearsal, Mr. Vincent; rehearsal, Mr. Dick Brown; production manager and director, Mr. Dan Julien; assistant production and properties manager, Mrs. Judy Williams.

Assistant director, Mrs. Virginia Burt; student assistant director, Tony Peraino; choreography, Miss Nancy Glanz; set design and lighting, Mr. James Shippey; set construction, Mr. Alby Paris; stage manager, Mrs. Jean Wagner; student stage manager, Harvey Sweet; sound, Mr. Bob DiGiulio; promotion and publicity, Mr. Robert Neff and Mr. James Mills.

Student groups which have already offered assistance include the H.V. club, Thespian club, Sound club, art classes, industrial arts club, drama club, dramatics class, Scorpium club.

Music for the huge production will be furnished by the South Oakland Symphony orchestra. Rehearsals will be held, with tickets costing $1 for students, $1.50 for adults.

Mrs. Irma Wright, Southfield High school instructor, became the fifth teacher at the school to win radio station WXYZ's Apple for the Teacher award.

Previous winners were Miss Virginia Hammond, Miss Dorcas Picard, Mrs. Barbara Start and Mr. Richard Welkenbach.

Kingswood Column

By JOAN McDONALD

With the new year came resolution of a new curriculum program for the new year began last September, and at that time a new academic program was made effect.

The primary change in the curriculum was the number and type of subjects which may be taken. Previously Kingswood students carried four main courses throughout the year, with the exception of outstanding sophomores who had the option of selecting a fifth, perhaps a compulsory subject which met twice a week, such as speech in the eighth grade, and one extra-curricular activity besides sports.

The program now includes a choice of major and minor electives and certain obligatory courses, such as English and others required for individual grades. Freshmen and sophomores may take five majors.

It has been made possible to take a special sequence in either foreign languages or sciences. New subjects have been added to the list of majors, such as German, weaving and economics.

The minor which includes all the extracurricular activities as well as lighter courses in academic subjects meet twice a week. Included in these are such new subjects as music appreciation, creative writing, art theory, geography and current events, Dramatics, glee club, all art courses and typing may be selected, also.

The new program has been in effect for nearly an entire semester, and has proved to be very successful as well as enjoyable, for it gives each student greater opportunity to follow his own interests.

The parent council held a dinner at Kingswood Friday evening for all students' parents. The dinner was followed by a talk by the well-known architect, Mr. Minoru Yamasaki, who is the father of Carl, a Kingswood junior. Mr. Yamasaki spoke on "The Role of Art in Modern Life."

THE TUBEROUS BEGONIA

It is our hope that this writing may persuade you to try a few of the bulbs (tubers) which will easily produce some of the most beautiful flowers and colors that you have ever had in your garden or your home. (It is probable that orchid growers will contest this comment—but they generally have a pretty considerable investment in their operations to protect.)

Consider the following few comments regarding this popular and amazing plant:

First, they produce flowers more varied in form and color and over a longer season than any other bulbous plant.

Second, for purity and delicacy of coloring they are unsurpassed. (Blue and its associated hues are absent)

Third, they are the most colorful plants that can be grown in the shade. In fact, in this area, they require a moderate shade, especially during the mid-day period. They will tolerate a great deal of "high shade" such as from overhanging trees.

Fourth, they are easy to grow—regardless of the kind of soil, and the range of shade they will tolerate is wide.

Fifth, they are almost immune to pest and disease troubles—and even those are easy to control.

Sixth, they happen to be TEBDIBLY inexpensive (35c each).

Seventh, with regard to the "Sixth" if you think the price is high, many tubers are producing perfect flowers after 15 (fifteen) years. (Annual cost—2.33333+)

Eighth, very little equipment is required other than a small amount of brain (which has to remember but not think). Anything from a clay pot to a 12" x 24" greenhouse will do and even these are not necessary—they simply hurry the blooming time by 4 to 8 weeks.

Ninth, they can be started indoors, grown indoors, bloom indoors, die indoors, etc. without ever seeing the other beauties in your garden

GLOXINIAS

These tubers, about which we will say little at (so much an inch) produce fundamentally indoor plants in this latitude. About as easy to grow as begonias they produce a more limited but more unusual combination of color forms than the former.

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS FOR BOTH TUBERS and GROWERS ARE AVAILABLE AT THE STORE. What store? Ha, ha! You're kidding!
