SOCIETY

Invitational Concert Opens 1960 Campaign

The annual invitational concert given by the Detroit symphony is a "thank you" to its contributors signalled the opening of the orchestra's 1960 maintenance fund campaign Sunday afternoon in Ford auditorium.

Paul Paray conducted the first half of the program with Lorin Hollander, pianist, as soloist. He turned his podium over to J. S. Sweeney III for the second half of the concert.

The society of contributors to the Detroit symphony has accepted the responsibility of raising the new funds. Robert Wardrop will head the drive assisted by John B. Ford III, David Gamble and Henry Newman Jr.

A spear-head committee for special gifts began work two weeks ago under the direction of Meadames C. Henry Buhl and Theodore O. Yertma.
