Magazine Sellers Bring New Warning

EDITOR'S NOTE: Many Birmingham householders in the past several months have been pestered by objectionable magazine peddlers. City officials are doing everything they can to eliminate this harassment of residents. Local ordinances, already tight, are being reviewed for ways to make them tougher yet. In the following article, Michigan Attorney General Paul L. Adams has some suggestions on this subject.

By PAUL L. ADAMS
 State Attorney General

The coming of summer means traveling crews of magazine salesmen will be swarming through the state. Practically no home will be left untouched by their efforts to unload magazine subscriptions on Michigan citizens.

Some of the crews are legitimate. Some are not. For your protection, I would suggest these rules:

- 1) Determine whether or not the outfit involved is a legitimate one. Do this by asking the salesman for whom he works. Then be sure to check with your local chamber of commerce or better business bureau.
- 2) Do not buy magazines you do not want or need. Many gimmicks will be used to get your signature on the subscription blank. A pretty young girl may be working her way through nurse school; a clean-cut young man may be working his way through medical school; a disfigured salesman may be trying to get enough money for an artificial limb; you may be one of the lucky few to win a "prize." These are just a few of many techniques to cajole a high-pressure you to play upon your sympathy.
- 3) Sign nothing in blank and be sure you understand what you are signing. If you don't understand all the terms of the agreement, don't sign! If in doubt, consult your financial advisor or lawyer—even magazine subscriptions can prove to be mighty expensive. By following these simple rules, you can protect yourself from unscrupulous magazine salesmen and be sure of actually getting the magazines you want.
