Say 'Goodby' At Midvale

Parents, teachers, staff and students of Midvale school this week honored principal Jack Greenawald who leaves the school this month. Greenawald has received a scholarship to study for his doctorate at Harvard university.

"He came to Midvale as principal when the school opened three years ago," said PTA President Mrs. Susan P. Rumney in a farewell talk. "Through his energy and leadership he quickly secured the confidence and admiration of parents, teachers and students," she went on. "As a result, we have within our school the finest standards of achievement and performance."

Parents, teachers and students presented the departing principal with a typewriter.

than their classmates at U of M, but that their performance is substantially higher.

Birmingham students constantly rank in the top one per cent of the nation in the Iowa Achievement tests.

Wagner said Birmingham's building costs have been at or below the state average.

GROVES HIGH school cost less than a citizens' committee had expected.

Nicholas Rosello, 32000 Mountview, Franklin, spoke to the group as a citizen and taxpayer. "I am convinced the Mar. 28 millage defeat was a protest vote," he said.

"THE PARADOX of it is that voters said: 'we don't like what you're doing, therefore we will not give you the money to make the changes.'"

"The punishment of our decision will be wreaked upon our children," Rosello went on. "But voting June 13 is not enough," he said; "it is not a panacea; we must show a greater and continuing interest in our schools."

Sprinkling Season?
With warm weather setting in, Birmingham's water usage rises as 78,226,502 gallons of water costing $17,500.42 were used during the month of May. Record day for the month was May 25 with 3,201, 879 gallons pumped.

SPENCE IS a senior customer representative for Detroit Edison.

Birmingham must be ready to pay for the high calibre teachers it needs to continue developing the high quality students it has, he says. Curriculum, the responsibility of the board, should be changed only with the advice of the professionals—the superintendent of schools and his staff.

Mrs. Mary Bester, 2236 Pine, wife of former Mayor Dean G. Bester, was appointed to the board in February 1959.

SHE IS the mother of four—three of school age.

The job of the board is to offer to the community the best possible education within the funds the community can provide, she said.

Curriculum must be decided upon by the board and implemented by the school administrators, she went on, but a reasonable balance must be found between the two elements.

CANDIDATE Garvin W. Bawden, Jr., 577 Gordon lane, is a manufacturers agent and a 12-year Birmingham resident. He has two children attending Baldwin school.

He has been a church school teacher at Christ Church Cranbrook for six years, and is a sponsor of the ninth and tenth-grade group there.

Birmingham must strive continually for improvement in five areas, no matter how satisfactory they seem, he said. The areas are: teachers (and teachers' salaries), administration, curriculum, facilities and economy.

ALBERT C. SCOTT, 1961 Birmingham boulevard, a candidate, has lived in Birmingham for seven years and has two children attending Birmingham schools. He is a Ford Motor company executive.

Better communications between the school board, administration and the public is essential, Scott said. The March 28 millage defeat indicates this. Improvement of teachers' salaries is essential. The board should cut out as "frills" anything that does not contribute to the overall benefit of the students, in the opinion of the majority, he believes.

Ed. Ross Hanson, 966 N. Glenhurst, is a Ford Motor company executive and a six-year Birmingham resident. He has two children attending Quorton school.

The March 28 vote seemed to indicate, Hanson said, that voters want stricter economy, and that the board should cut marginal costs wherever possible. They seem to want greater more emphasis on academics and broader community participation in grading the school system.

To Celebrate Its 30 Years There

The Birmingham community five vacancies on the board of directors. Those whose terms are expiring June 13, at its annual meeting are Harold S. McFarland, president; Richard A. Fischer, Mrs. John J. Joyner, James F. Moore who will be eligible to vote to fill and Mrs. Robert F. Hatch.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER

The Answers to Your Gardening Questions by Bob

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: Do you cut flowers from regular borders or should there be special beds and borders for that purpose?

BOB'S ANSWER: If you have room it is advisable to have special beds and borders for flowers you'll want to cut. Then you won't have to disturb the color scheme or thin out the blooms in your regular borders.
