

In Shain Park

Tuesday night's presentation begins at 8:30 p.m. Brookside school's string ensemble, an integral part of the Birmingham Musicale, will perform under the direction of William Casey, the school's director of music.

At 9 p.m. "An Evening with Chaplin" features two original Chaplin films, under the supervision of Louis Studulski.

WEDNESDAY is "Ethnic Night", featuring the 16th century madrigal singers directed by Joachim Matthesium, German dancers directed by Mrs. Anton Brenner, and Scottish dancers under the direction of Mrs. Margret Simpson Sinclair.

Another short program of art films follows.

Thursday the Chrysler Pipe Band and dancers will march Pied-Piper fashion through the streets to the dome, where they will perform for a half an hour before the Farmington Players present "The Hasty Heart."

FRIDAY'S big event features jazz, a combination of talented musicians who are labeled as "exentensalistic." They'll perform at 8:30 p.m.

Saturday leads off with the Metropolitan Indian Dancers association at 3 p.m., with William Pollard directing colorfully garbed dancers.

Saturday night the Village Players of Birmingham present "Pot Luck", featuring outstanding acts from the amateur theatre group's best musicals of recent years. Co-producers are William Kegel and Ward Tollzien.

"DANCING in the Dome" completes the week-long festivities. Radio-TV personality Bob Maxwell will be master of ceremonies, with dance music provided by the Maple Trio and the Esquires.

Brookside Ensemble Performing Tuesday Is Musicale Group

One of the community cultural groups participating in the Birmingham arts festival is the Birmingham Musicale. Its president, Mrs. John Phelps, of Walnut lake road, is chairman of the Tuesday program in the geodesic dome.

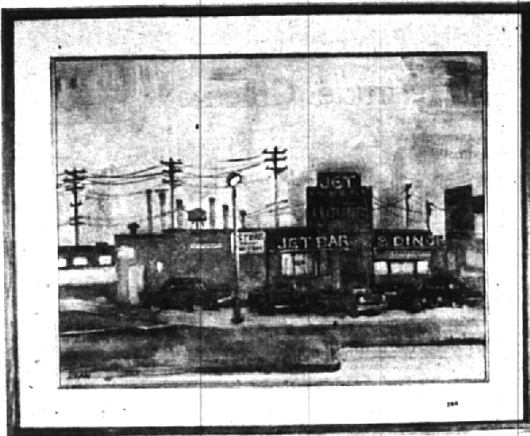

At 8:30 p.m. an ensemble which is an integral part of the Musicale, the Brookside school string ensemble, performs under direction of William Casey.

Associated with Brookside for over 20 years, Casey is the school's director of music.

Mrs. Ronald Kasperzak is in charge of the ensemble's half-hour program.

The harp and vocal ensemble of Cass technical high school, made up of talented young vocalists and instrumentalists, will perform at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the geodesic dome.
