

Fancy footwork is displayed by the nimble lassies who appear with the Chrysler corporation Highlander band at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in the geodesic dome. Above, they're doing a lively dance formerly associated with warfare, "The Highland Fling."

Ah, Yes—Sculpture?

Mrs. Don E. Ahrens of Haverill road, Bloomfield Hills, admires a piece of wooden sculpture which will be viewed by many at the Arts Festival Ball.

Village Players
Are 37 Years Old

One of Birmingham's oldest organizations is producing the geodesic dome presentation for Saturday, June 18 at the arts festival.

The Village Players of Birmingham was founded Feb. 13, 1923 as a private, theatrical club. Some of its charter members are still working actively in the group's production of six or seven plays annually.
