

BIRMINGHAM, MICHIGAN

Thursday, June 16, 1960

I have a friend who has succumbed to the thought of "age" . . . that "I'm about worn out. I guess . . . so what's the use of assuming I can become healthier?" It was pointed out to him that, all his life, he had surmounted difficulties, achieved numerous goals by thinking positively—so why not about his desire for health?

Alex graduated last week from West Bloomfield high school. He was valedictorian.

Dateline Derby

Students Pass With Time And Regret

By BRENDA DRUM

As I walked down the halls of Derby yesterday for my very last time, I began remembering the very first time I had walked down these halls. I was a bewildered seventh-grader staring at the modern furnishings and big ninth-graders. As my sixth-grade teacher once said, "now you are a large duck in a small puddle of water, but next year . . . you will be a small duck in a huge pond." Next year, Derby's old ninth-graders will again be little ducks in a huge, huge pond. Seaholm high school!

AS YOU enter the seventh-grade, you encounter many embarrassing, wonderful, amusing and difficult experiences, such as not being able to find a class. A seventh-grade student can not yet appreciate the true value of Derby.

As I remember, it seems that my whole world centered around my homeroom, and the rest of the school was completely apart.

By the ninth-grade you have had the opportunity to learn more about everything at Derby, the students, teachers, activities, and sports included.

NEXT YEAR will be a challenge for the ninth-grade graduates, but not a problem. With the great guidance from Derby's teachers and the wonderful supervision from Mr. Burchett, the personality, knowledge, and confidence of ninth-grade students has been greatly increased.

Derby is a school not one of us is likely to forget. Although the three years to come promise to contain many new subjects in learning and in living, the last three years at Derby have been three of the most fruitful years of my life.

This is my farewell as your reporter for Derby. Have a glorious summer and be happy!!!

Southfield Students Attend Boys' State

David John Lampi and Clifford Sherwood Thompson, Southfield high school juniors will attend the 23rd annual Wolverine boys' state from June 16 to 23, on the Michigan State university campus.

The boys were selected to attend the American legion sponsored school on the basis of leadership, good sportsmanship, personality and mental alertness. Enrollment

Two 'R's'

Fred and Will Coffin, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Coffin, 1775 N. Woodward, received their varsity "R's" for their contributions as members of athletic teams at Western Reserve academy, Hudson, Ohio. Fred's letter was for baseball, Will's for track.
