Experts to Talk On Foreign Aid

Experts from Michigan State university and other institutions, who have been overseas under sponsorship of the state department, will bring their experiences to an all-day institute, on first-hand facts on foreign aid, March 24, at MSU in Rochester. The program is being co-sponsored by the office of continuing education of MSU and the eight League of women voters of Oakland and Macomb counties.

Heading the planning committee are Dr. Lowell Eklund, director of continuing education, MSU and Mrs. Walter N. Jackson, foreign policy chairman of the Birmingham L.W.V.

"THIS FOREIGN AID institute will culminate a year of intensive study by leagues all over the country and has as its objectives the high lighting and dissemination of this information through the community. We are especially inviting international relations chairmen of clubs and organizations," said Mrs. Jackson. "As official representatives we hope they will report these first-hand facts on our newest, most positive tool of foreign policy back to their groups."
