Investors hold $441,668,105.26 in U.S. Government securities that no longer earn 1% of interest... could this happen to you?

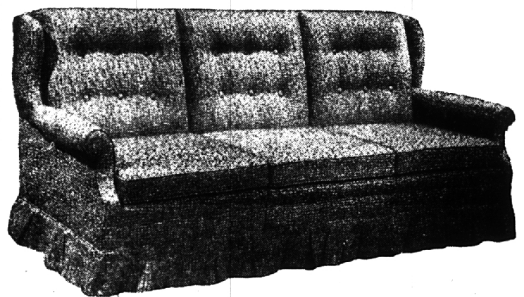

These securities have matured and the Government stands ready to pay the holders when and if they present their securities for payment. But the interest that these funds could be earning is forever lost. Oversights like this are not uncommon. The last time American Telephone & Telegraph Company offered stockholders the privilege of subscribing for debentures, "rights" which could have been sold for about $560,000 were allowed to expire. There is a simple, convenient way to make certain your investments keep on making money: At National Bank of Detroit it's called an Investment Agency Account. Our large and experienced Trust Department assumes the responsibility of handling all of the details connected with your investments. This includes presenting your securities for payment as they mature, and seeing that rights are either sold or exercised. All your investments are kept under constant review. And recommendations are made from time to time to help you invest your money more profitably. Just call WO 5-6000 and ask to speak with a Trust Officer. He'll be glad to arrange a personal interview for you and tell you more about the benefits of an Investment Agency Account at National Bank of Detroit.
