

NATURE NOW Few Fall Days Remain As Winter Approaches

Now in the last golden days of autumn the out-of-doors beckons with some of nature's most poignant offerings.

Among the last of the season's flowers are the gentians, all-time favorites of the latest hoes. We recently saw both the fringed and the bottle gentian impervious to a weekly roadside, their innumerable blue color a rival of the October sky.

ON A RECENT VISIT to Lansing, we browsed for a few hours in the science library of Michigan State University. Here are volumes in many languages on every conceivable scientific topic. How can we as the layman record knowledge and yet how uncharted the way ahead!

A walk in the university arboretum recalled the memory of James Beal for whom it is named. A student of Agassiz and Gray, he came to the university in 1870 and began the botanical research in 1873.

From his life-time research on hybrid corn, the 20th century miracle of crop production. In such fruitful ways do men's deities live after them.

Loan, Scholarship Association Elects Officers, Trustees

Election of officers topped the agenda at a recent meeting of the Birmingham student loan and scholarship fund association.

Other trustees of the association include Donald Upward, J. W. Duhon and Otis M. Diekey.

ORGANIZED in 1922, the association has administered the granting of financial assistance to between 75 and 100 students who have pursued their education beyond high school.

NOMINATIONS for scholarships are made by a committee composed of representatives of high school administration, counselors, senior class advisors and members of the student council.

THIS TIME OF year our interest in the plants should be directed to the condition of our house plants which have taken a beating in the last few months.

DO JOIN THE Burlingameans on a trip which begins on a ferry from Helsingborg, Sweden. Reluctantly you leave this city of 75,000, built on terraces which look across the Sound to Elsinore, Denmark.

ALONG the roadside, hedges of orange orange trees their heavy fruits with a dull thud and unrelenting hawthornies like a perfect circle of scarlet.
