

Seniors Rule Roost for a Day

SOUTHFIELD—Not "king for a day" but democratically close to it, these students governed the City of Southfield for a day last week. Following primary and final elections, they "took office." A mayor, clerk, treasurer, municipal court judge, associate judge and seven councilmen were selected by the senior class. The annual event was part of Youth appreciation week. Its purpose was to give students a taste of campaign and election procedures as well as experience in the machinery of government.

basin restrictors into use.

For relief of the system north and south of Beverly road which flows into the Acacia park sewer district, the engineers recommended that the village join with Birmingham in building a trunk sewer along 14 Mile road to the Evergreen sewer and the Rouge river.

"THIS APPEARS to be the least expensive and most practical of all possibilities here," their 18-page report stated.

A 15-inch trunk line along Sheridan road and an 18-inch line east on Amherst are completely inadequate, the report said, calling it capable of serving an area of about one-fifth the size of contributing areas.

THEY SAID flooding in some critical areas is aggravated by downspouts discharging into the system when there is no outlet for water except into basements in the immediate area.

Two general conclusions were made in the report, estimated to have cost $3,500 and involving a manhole-by-manhole inspection of the entire area's sewers and drains. About 1,000 questionnaires were sent to homeowners, 700 of which were answered. The engineers concluded, "The overall system is deficient in design for the areas served."

Also determined was that the entire system needs cleaning and repairs as funds are available.

DECORATIONS of international flags, steamships and airplane posters, as well as cases of exhibits from foreign lands, were planned by Clinton Cook, Mable Hammerbeck and Gladys Kratze. The exhibits were from collections made by teachers who have traveled abroad extensively. The teachers include Gene LaRue, Tom Hughes, Don Dennis, Nonette Gauthier, Alice Miranda and Mrs. Paul van der Meer.

In charge of the menu, which featured finger foods of many kinds, was Bloomfield Hills cafeteria supervisor, Edna Cook.
