2 Social Consultants Opening B'ham Agency

With the opening April 20 of the Mead and Adams Agency, 614 N. Woodward Ave., a new service is offered Birmingham area residents aimed at eliminating time-consuming details involved in party-giving.

As the agency is now set up, a client has merely to indicate the type of function she is planning. Social matters as ordering and addressing invitations, checking floral arrangements, obtaining music and caterers and making photographic appointments (when desired) are included in the service.

Weddings are supervised in detail from the day of the engagement announcement until after the marriage ceremony. Children's parties, teas, and anniversaries are handled as completely.

AWARE that the suburban area has firmly established its own informal social pattern—Mead and Adams stated they have no intention of setting up new social concepts, creating "preferred lists," or stimulating a so-called "season."

Social precepts will be followed of course, when it is traditionally correct to do so, but by and large the purpose of the agency is to provide a consultation and service to anyone who requires it.

Both Mrs. Mary Ellen Mead and Shirley Adams, agency partners, feel they have lived in this area long enough to be familiar with the over-all social picture.

Both have had considerable newspaper experience, have worked in public relations and are enthusiastic over bringing a new type of service to their home town.

Their Florida Holiday Turns into Reunion

WALNUT LAKE—Immediately after the Christmas holidays, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Smith of Putnam Road left for Florida, returning April 4.

While in Florida they spent most of their time at Ocean Breeze Park at Jensen Beach, Fla. While there, Mrs. Smith says they did the things most visitors do but mostly they enjoyed seeing so many Michigan friends.

They spent three week ends with very old friends from Cleveland where the Smith's lived at one time. They always look forward to these visits with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lohr in Pompano, Fla.

The nicest part about the return trip home was a stop off in Akron, Ohio where they spent some time with their daughter, Peggy, who is working for her masters degree at Akron University.
