Birmingham - Bloomfield Hills Society Notes

By JOYCE KLARR
MI 6-1358

THE MEN might have all been back here in Birmingham Bloomfield, but we found out where the BOYS were! Not only boys, but also girls—by the thousands were down in Ft. Lauderdale, and almost every college in the country was represented, even Slippery Rock.

Uniform of the day consisted of a bathing suit, long sweatshirt with their college emblem emblazoned across the front, and a straw hat. For the No. 1 hotel pool, the bathing suit was exchanged for madras bermudas, but with the same shirt and hat, naturally.

The kids really whooped it up according to the long suffering Ft. Lauderdale policemen I talked to. The students were up to their usual tricks: filling hotel pools with dead fish (sharks were at a premium), "removing" everything from a navy recruiting exhibit and, of course, climbing on top of everything (I knew we would go back to the trees someday!) One lad kept police and traffic at bay for three hours at the corner of Glas and Ocean Boulevard (riot alley) while he perched on the street scaffolding and led group singing (old "Lord Jeffrey Amherst" really caught it).

If a student bunked in with less than ten buddies at any of the packed hotels and motels, he was considered a social snob. The system seemed to be that one delegate would register for a single room, take possession, and then the pack would come in the back way. These plans were subject to sudden and often violent change due to the hotel management.

Street barricades had to be set up to stop cars from driving anywhere near the beach area (it would have been easier to get into Egypt with an Israeli passport). Almost in desperation, the hotels sought to control the complete destruction of pupils scruples with planned street dances and other "fun" activities, but naturally they all turned into fiascos.

Billy Graham drew a throng to his beach speech and he was great. The kids listened respectfully, kept their ribald remarks to a minimum, and then carried on as before!

Next year the Ft. Lauderdale merchants are looking forward to an even bigger season (for I would have loved to have had an exclusive on the sun burn lotion concession). No matter how they moaned, they were rubbing their palms in glee as Poppa's money was being thrown around town. No one seemed to ask the acres of students being served alcohol and the hotels were even giving cocktail parties for them!

It's a unique spectacle — this Florida Road. My only thought being that the cutest and trimmest college girls don't make the trip down. Perhaps because of wise parents—or perhaps it's just that they don't HAVE to go where the boys are!

Culture Corner

Baldwin library is featuring full length opera recordings every morning this week at nine forty-five in the second floor auditorium. Unfortunately this news comes a little late but they will repeat the week long series if enough of you request it. At least you can attend tomorrow and Saturday when they will do Traviata and La Boheme. These are two that the young people would enjoy.

Beach Beauties

St. James church undercroft will be the setting of a children's fashion show and card party April 25. St. Catherine's guild is sponsoring the party and young models include Nancy Diamond, Linda McKay, Sandy Weston, Barbara Swart, Jill White, Deborah Gostley, Rebecca Van Dine.

No Fleas, Please

The Village Women have been hard at work gathering items for their auction and flea market to be held May 6 at the Smart farm in Rochester. Co-chairman, Mrs. Paul Johns has found some delightful old wine barrels and her helpers are busy converting them into handsome patio tables. Mrs. Ralph W. Wagner is in charge of collections and there are reports of all kinds of goodies being sent in—pewter, silver, china and so on. Her committee consists of Mrs. Edward Parker, Mrs. James W. Dodds, Mrs. Charles W. Jones, Mrs. Jack Waters, and Mrs. Harold K. Chapel, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Cowan have as guests her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Huyette of Summit, New Jersey. Journey of Bloomfield Hills.

Century Notes

What ever happened to the ten dollar a couple dinners? I guess that's all ancient history in these days of Beas arts balls and benefit dinners. Addressing invitations to the glamorous May 6 MSUO evening at the Wilson estate (100 dollars a couple, but can you afford not to be seen there?) were Mrs. Paul J. Shiner, Mrs. Delbert Richards, Mrs. B. B. Kelley, Mrs. Richard Darragh, Mrs. Richard Teel, Mrs. Otis Thompson, Mrs. Robert Craig and Mrs. Westlan Wright.
