

COMMENT:

IT'S A LAW OF NATURE THAT THINGS IN LIFE DO NOT STAND STILL; THEY

get better or they get worse. Living in a suburban community does not mean a retreat from the complexities of modern, fast-paced living — we can not escape from the problems that attach themselves to family groupings, social clusterings and the constellation of problems attendant to any kind of community living, whether it be urban or suburban.

EACH OF US PLAYS TWO ROLES OF CITIZENSHIP TODAY. WORLD-WIDE

citizenship is as inescapable as the atom bomb. This should not, however, cause us to neglect the historically important role of grass root citizenship. It is at the local level where community influences develop the men and women who emerge as tomorrow's hope for peace and spiritual nobility.

IF SUBURBAN COMMUNITY LIVING IS NOT A RETREAT AND IF IT IS NOT A shelter from a grass roots citizenship role, then it becomes necessary to perform like citizens, to participate in the ways good citizens should participate — involvement in problem-solving and problem-prevention. But first it becomes necessary to become informed and to keep informed. And that brings us back to the original question: How?
