Publicity Exposes Teacher To An Age-Old Predicament

The second grade class at the Hamlin School in Rochester will not be the same for the rest of the school year. Its teacher, Mrs. Ann Chute, 93 Robinson, Birmingham, may never be the same. Nor her husband. He's the victim of a bum rap.

The class, and Mrs. Chute, have never been exposed to the glare of newspaper, radio and television publicity.

MSUO Chorus To Present Yule Program

Michigan State University Oakland's program of non-credit adult courses will soon add on in the field of advertising.

Because of the increasing role of the advertising profession in the free enterprise system, an advertising seminar will be offered beginning Jan. 15 in the expanding evening Continuing Education program.

The program is designed for those who plan to pursue advertising as a career, or businessmen who desire greater knowledge about the applications and functions of advertising, both print and broadcast media.

THE PURPOSE is to aid the individual in better understanding the uses of research, art, copy and media selection and their practical application to sales and distribution.

One of the unique aspects of the seminar is that it will have a faculty of four Detroit area advertising men, each discussing his own special field of activity. They are Dr. David F. Miller, director of Marketing Research for J. Walter Thompson—research; Robert S. Marker, senior vice president and director of Creative Service, MacManus, John & Adams—creative; Louis T. Hagopian, account supervisor, N. W. Ager & Son—television and radio; and James P. Dickerson, national advertising and promotion manager, The Pontiac Press—newspapers and magazines.

THE COURSE WILL be held for ten successive Monday evenings beginning Jan. 15 at 7:30 p.m. The class period will be approximately two hours. The cost of the seminar is $35.

Railroad Club Plans Banquet for Jan. 20

Annual banquet of the Michigan Railroad Club will be at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 20, at the Starlight Room, 10235 Woodward, Detroit. Tickets are still available from Harry Ecklitz, 8911 Seminole, Detroit 39, Mich.

Completes Training

Richard G. Rohn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Rohn of 1809 Maryland, Birmingham, completed nine weeks of training, Nov. 10, at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

include a study of Bolivia and its customs. Vikki became probably the nation's youngest teacher, and taught the class and Mrs. Chute Spanish nursery songs, how to count in Spanish, and lectured the class in the customs of her homeland.

Vikki and her classmates built a Bolivian Indian hut, made cardboard dolls clad in Bolivian dress, and painted a large mural depicting the Bolivian street and house where Vikki lived.

IT SOUNDED like a good story to Mrs. Chute's husband, David, a writer for United Press International. So he wrote it, and the story of Vikki and the second-grade class at the Hamlin School was carried on United Press International wires.

It should have ended there, but it didn't. Pictures were required to go with the story, of course, so Chute took several of Vikki, Mrs. Chute, and the class.

Inevitably, one boy was out of his seat when the class pictures were taken, and was inexcusable when he discovered he was not in the pictures.

A UPI client newspaper in the Rochester area wanted more details and its own pictures, so it sent a reporter to the school.

BOLIVIAN HUT, mural and dolls had been removed to make way for an upcoming Christmas project. They had to be taken from the school store room and replaced for the pictures.

The little boy who was missing in the original class pictures, was glad to see his seat for this series.

Another newspaper in the Rochester area also wanted a more detailed story.

Then the UPI story was carried on UPI radio wires.

A Detroit television station wanted to do an action feature, and sent a TV camera crew to the school for reenactment of little Vikki teaching Spanish to her classmates.

Again the Bolivian hut and mural and dolls replaced the developing Christmas project in the classroom. Again the little boy was glad to see his seat . . . not missing a television appearance.

Now, a school textbook publisher is planning to include a study of Bolivia and its customs. Vikki became probably the nation's youngest teacher, and taught the class and Mrs. Chute Spanish nursery songs, how to count in Spanish, and lectured the class in the customs of her homeland.

lishing house is planning to publish an article about Mrs. Chute and her improvisation to take advantage of a circumstance to bring her pupils learning that would be otherwise unavailable.

THIS AGAIN should be the logical end to the story, but it isn't. And this is where Mrs. Chute's husband, who started it, becomes the innocent bystander caught in the middle.

For 22, going on 23 years, Mrs. Chute has lived with her newsman husband, enamored of the romance of journalism.

Now, domestic relations are strained and the romance of journalism is gone . . . the glitter of an exciting profession is tarnished . . . the sweet flavor of enchantment turned to vinegar by a statistic between two commas.

MRS. CHUTE, 48, . . . that did its own story, correlated an inevitable feminine prerogative. It printed her version.

Drugs Impair Driving Ability

A distinguished group of physicians recently warned drivers that barbiturates, tranquilizers, anti-histamines and other drugs taken commonly today can seriously impair their driving ability.

The doctors appeared on "Traffic Safety Report" over Station WKMI, a program presented by the station in cooperation with the Traffic Safety Association.

Dr. John M. Sheldon, allergist at the University of Michigan Medical Center; Dr. Ben Hoffman, assistant psychiatrist, Detroit Traffic Court Clinic; Dr. Edward S. Zawadzki, Wayne County Medical Examiner, and Dr. Paul Joliet, deputy chief, Accident Prevention Division of the United States Public Health Service.

THEY DISCUSSED the use of tranquilizers, anti-histamines, weight reducing pills, barbiturates, wonder drugs, pep pills, and cold pills.

These were some of the conclusions the doctors agreed on: The drugs could give a false sense of control.

Many who take such medication should not drive for at least four hours thereafter.

Some can produce a lack of coordination and good judgment, as well as a loss of depth perception. They can make the taker sleepy and also in some cases cause dangerous personality changes.

They emphasized that these drugs taken before or while a person is drinking alcoholic beverages can produce a deadly combination.

They warned persons who take such drugs to check with their own physicians on how the drugs affect their individual driving ability.
