

To Build 2 Models In 14-Evergreen Sub

BEVERLY HILLS — Village officials Monday granted permission to William J. Fuile, a developer, to build two models that will be a part of a future subdivision in the 14 Mile-Evergreen area. The plans for the southeast corner R-1 development are presently being checked by the village planners. The subdivision will have 43 lots on 23 acres.

AN EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

To the officials, managers, supervisors, department heads and their staffs, of the Cities of Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills and the Township of Bloomfield.

The types of business activities in which the residents of these communities are engaged represent a wide spectrum of professions, mercantile establishments, industry, banking and self-employment. All benefit from forward-looking planning, sound decisions and efficient government administration, but no group is more directly benefited than those who are engaged in the real estate business. Every weekday—morning, afternoon or evening—some real estate transaction is taking place in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area.

You administrators, elected officials, supervisors and managers in our local governments are silent partners in these transactions. For whether a competent, far-sighted local government attracts the high quality of our residents, or whether the government is a reflection of its citizenry and property owners, the success of our realty livelihood is due in large measure to your wise administration of our local governments and our schools.

Therefore I wish to let you know that we as Realtors are aware of our indebtedness to you. Our professional success has been made possible by a civic government which has helped to provide both the tangible and intangible values for which our community is so well known.

Scale Model of New School

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—This scale model shows what the new Bloomfield Hills high school at Kensington and Opylke will look like when it is completed next fall. Board of Education members, now in the process of determining a name for the building, have asked for suggestions from the student council at Bloomfield Hills present high school on Andover Road in the township. Boundary lines should also be decided on by January.

Rec Commission Rejects Request By Local Resident

LATHRUP—Council on Monday backed the decision of the Lathrup Recreation Commission to turn down a request to support a basketball league program involving only four players from Lathrup. Mrs. William O'Brien, recreation director, appeared before council to state the commission stand. She agreed with Mayor Richard N. Cogger that the matter should not have come before council but said A. A. Lobanoff, who had requested support of the basketball program, had asked for council opinion.

LOBANOFF, ill with the flu, was not able to attend. Mrs. O'Brien said Lobanoff wanted to enter his players in a Birmingham league and had asked that about $50 worth of equipment be paid for by the commission. Mrs. O'Brien said recreation funds were "used up" and that the amount requested Lobanoff could be used for other programs benefiting more Lathrup people. Lobanoff's program involves about 12 youths, average age 22, only four of them local, she said.

MAYOR COGGER said the council would always consider commission requests to exceed the recreation budget, provided the commission could justify the use. Both Mrs. O'Brien and council members, concerned that taxpayers' money should not be used for the Lobanoff proposed basketball program.

ANDERSON explained that several of the loops could be abandoned but that costs for installing them in the future would increase because of rising prices and the smaller nature of the work that would be done.

The eastern portion of the village has had water for several years. It is served by metering stations at Beverly and Greenfield and another at 14 Mile and Southfield. A third metering point is proposed at Evergreen and 14 Mile.
