Old-Fashion Opening of New Store

Personnel of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company turned out in colonial attire for an old-fashioned grand opening of a new A&P store at Maple and Labser in Bloomfield Township last week. It is the Birmingham-Bloomfield area's second Early American designed store. Shipping the ribbon is Norman Hulet, Bloomfield Township supervisor, as Edward Vogel (left), vice president of the Detroit unit, and Carl Kottke (right), store manager, look on. Others are from left Harry West, assistant manager trainee; Cyril Borst, district supervisor; Mrs. Joyce Parker, hostess; Rubin Armstead, assistant manager trainee; and Raymond Kottke, sales department.

BITS OF BIRMINGHAM

Touring the Birmingham Eccentric seems to be an educational experience for young people. At least for some of them. As attested by this letter from Debbie Gammon, 1392 Melton, Birmingham: "On Wednesday, Jan. 28, 1961, our Brownie Trip No. 438 went through The Eccentric Building and we enjoyed it very much. We learned a lot about newspapers and it was exciting to see all those printing machines." To which we say, "We are happy to have you, kids." Tours can be arranged by calling the news room. They must be after 2 p. m. on a Wednesday, Thursday or Friday.

Lathrup Mayor Richard N. Cogger almost lost his captaincy calm Monday night when all hands were rocking the boat during a stormy session. Cogger finally gavelled a record three taps before announcing, "Please, I don't have ears enough to hear everyone at once."
