

B'field to Use Authority In LCC Permit Control

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Bloomfield Township will exercise its authority to determine whether or when any new liquor licenses will be issued in the township, according to T. Getzinger, chairman of the township board of trustees declared today.

Getzinger, chairman of a special subcommittee investigating the township liquor license situation, issued this ruling after conferring with State Liquor Control Commission officials in Lansing.

"MICHIGAN LAW gives the township full power in this area," Getzinger said. "And we intend to use it in the best interests of township residents."

He added that he had notified applicants for new liquor licenses to expect any final action from the board of trustees until at least Nov. 1.

"The timing of these new licenses poses a difficult problem," Getzinger said. "We intend to move cautiously and judiciously."

GETZINGER, ALONG with trustee Bob Reid and Sam Reeves outlined the board's position on the matter.

"Liquor licenses are issued on the basis of population—one for each 1,500 population. Bloomfield Township now has three liquor licenses outstanding. But our rapidly expanding population now enters us to 15, based on 1960 census figures," Getzinger explained.

In the past five years, Getzinger said, many persons have applied for licenses in the township, anticipating the expanded quota.

"Some of these applications have come from some of the finest restaurant operators in the state," Getzinger said. "Who want to build showplace eating and drinking establishments in the township."

BUT THE township's problem is if so, how many can the township reasonably support, and what type and in what location?

Getzinger acknowledged that the board had received "considerable pressure" from license applicants urging that the matter be quickly resolved.

But Getzinger declared that the board would not be pressured into hasty action.

"I REALIZE that the applicants have an important stake in this matter," Getzinger said. "But the township interest comes first."

Other officials will have profound effect on the future of our township, and we intend to make sure that that decision is the one township residents feel is best," he added.

The licenses in question are "Class C" type, entitling the licensee to sell beer, wine or spirits by the glass.

Twins

hands were "great about helping" and both Mrs. Libby and Mrs. Fox, whose twins were born after the families settled in Cranbrook, said the neighbors were "just wonderful."

Mrs. Libby said she is "eternally grateful for the Birmingham Community House which supplied household help on a moment's notice."

The three families are each closely knit and the children get along well together.

"There are problems, of course, but they're minor," one of the mothers said.

But Mrs. Gravenreter laughed and said they could expect the problem of mistaken identity to develop as the younger twins grow up.

She recalled a visit to a department store with Noel and Neil.

ONE OF THE twins disappeared and she finally had to ask the help of clerks.

"The little imps decided to play hide and seek and as fast as we found one, the other would drop out of sight and it seemed like hours before we finally corralled both of them."

The joking comment of one of the fathers, when told that twins were in the office, is typical of the spirit in which all these parents seem to handle their multiple offspring.

With a common-sense approach and a spicing of humor, he told his wife, "Well! I guess we'll have a double income tax reduction."

You can't stay ahead of your bills if you allow them to do all the running.
