Local Firm Joins TransAmerican National Network

Max Brook, Inc. Birmingham real estate firm, has been appointed the exclusive Birmingham-Bloomfield-Franklin area representative of TransAmerican Home Sales Centers, Inc., Frederic C. Pew, president of the local firm has announced.

According to Pew, TransAmerican is the oldest and largest of the national real estate networks specializing in intercity and interstate home sales, with a membership of more than 200 leading realtors across the country and annual residential sales exceeding $2,000,000,000.

"TransAmerican is organized to assist families moving from one locality to another by coordinating the sale of homes locally with the purchase of homes in other communities," Pew said.

"When we list a home for sale in this area, we immediately notify the TransAmerican realtor in the city to which the family is moving."

"With his cooperation, showing of homes in the new city are arranged at the same time the Birmingham home is featured in a special brochure, for presentation to other executives moving to this area from anywhere in the nation."

"This means we are now able to offer families moving here, from other cities or moving from this area to a new location, the finest possible service for finding the right home in the right place at the right price," Pew said.

The TransAmerican affiliation is the first of its kind for the 66-year-old Birmingham real estate firm, which is a member of the Birmingham and Detroit Real Estate Board.
