Scenes

haven't decided yet) to have a ring-side view in front of the platform. I was taking a picture of President Kennedy when I felt myself being pushed over the metal railing by a group of hysterical women.

With the help of two kind officers, I got back on my feet, but not on the floor. I ended up in a basket of flowers, filled with water. For five minutes the water trickled through my toes.

AT 1:25 A.M., the President remarked, "It has been a long day and I'm going home."

At 1:26 a.m., I looked at the officers and said, "It has been a long, exhausting four-days and I'm going home."

I left the ballroom looking like something the wind brought in... wet shoes, ripped gown and three more bruises.

But, if I'm invited back in four years, you can be sure that I'll be there even if the odds for survival are practically nil.
