

Local Writer Honored In National Contest

LATHRUP—Add another name to the list of local celebrities: Cleo Symons (Mrs. J. Howard Symons) who writes under her maiden name, was notified last week that she had placed third in a national short story writing contest that annually attracts thousands of would-be authors.

Another visiting mother is Mrs. Genevieve Brown of Kenosha, Wis., who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. James Moore and her family. Mrs. Moore entertained at a coffee July 18 for her mother and 10 guests were there to say "hello."

Cleo's entry, which did so well in the 1961 Writer's Digest competition, is called "To Everytime, a Season." It's theme: "there are always good hands ready to carry on." The story relates the experience of an old man who decides to show his family he's not through yet.

Others around the festive table were Mrs. Louis Allegretti, Mrs. Joseph Swain, the youngest Mrs. Forrester and Mrs. Moore. Mrs. Anderson, incidentally, took time out from laundering son David's baseball uniform to tell us of her luncheon plans. David, 15, keeps his uniform on the go—being quite a player.

Well, it wasn't exactly a progressive party but things certainly moved for Cathy Carson on her 14th birthday last Friday. Six girl friends began the "doins" at Edgewater Park, then headed to a motel owned by the Carsons for a dip in the pool.

Another reunion was that at the John Kohl residence recently when his two sisters, Mrs. Charles Hines of Springfield, Va. and Mrs. Clarence Cunningham and her four children, arrived from Stillwater, Okla. for a two-day visit. Kohl's parents were there also. They are the Harry F. Kohls of Springfield, Ohio.

Next on the agenda, as planned by Cathy's mother, Mrs. Oliver Carson, was a cookout at the Carson home on Glenwood.

The kids loved it all, including a visit to the zoo and overnight camping for four of the youngsters in the back yard.

Perhaps the powers that be should set up a Parents' Day at least in Lathrup. The Donald Forrests are hosting his parents, the Harry D. Forrests of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. and her mother Mrs. Henry Beard, of Lighthouse Pointe at Pompano Beach, Fla., for a 15 month's visit.

Although it rained all three days at Hidden Valley, the Louis Allegretti's say they enjoyed their July 15 weekend with two other couples and Louis' twin brother, Joseph and his wife. Despite the weather, they squeezed in miniature golf, dancing and generally had great fun. The other couples were the Gordon Cooleys and the Robert Shavers.

The busy Forrest clan spent the July 15 weekend visiting son Donald, 11, at Camp Nissokone and to make it old home week while they enjoyed the company of the Norman Jacksons of Lathrup Blvd.

New neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coon of Burgallow Drive were honored by the Rudolph J. Zabels at a mint julep party not too long ago. Guests were the Neil Tharwesters, Joseph Swains and Don Forrests.

Some 10 members from St. Bede's Teen Club went along with Detroit area Catholic Youth Organization friends on a trip to Bob-Lo July 16.

The Jacksons, by the way, were at Camp Nissokone to visit their son Brad, 12, who was there for a month's holiday. Brad's younger brothers, Gary, 8, and Don, 6, went along, too.

Manhattan Sightseeing Sparks Eastern Trip

CRANBROOK VILLAGE—Home was just a stop en route to elsewhere for the Harry Kirks of Bainbridge Drive who followed a 10-day trip East with a quick weekend trip to Grand Rapids.

Shirley, 18, Harry Jr., 11, and Andy, 8.

The family spent 10 days recently visiting Washington, D. C. and then on to Darien, Conn. to stay with the family of Harry's brother, William. A trio of commuter trips to New York City for sightseeing in the big town sparked their holiday.

The western part of the country drew the attention and time of the Hugh Clarks and their two youngsters, Dick, 16, and Carol, 12. High spots of their five-week trip, as far as Dick and Carol were concerned, were Catalina Island and Disneyland.

Back home to unload and re-pack for the couple and four of their five children—the baby visited relatives. Then they headed for Grand Rapids for the wedding of Mrs. Kirk's niece.

Right here in Michigan and to be specific, Mullett Lake, was the spot chosen by the Jack (John C.) Lynchon for their two-week vacation with friends. Sunning, swimming and fishing were agenda "musts" with Lynch catching his annual walleye.

"A busy time," says Mrs. Kirk. "That's right," echoed Judy, 15, semi-formal event will honor next term.

Another coming event is a mystery trip, tentatively set for Wednesday evening. Members will board the bus at the church and may make their reservations through Mrs. Edmund Viale or club president Grant Santinore.

Southfield—Southfield Kiwanians held their annual family picnic at Paul Bowman's farm Capboard on July 16. It didn't take the FBI man, scheduled to talk at

For we're having a shipwreck party. And you are just to wear a shipwreck—

What you salvaged from a shipwreck— What it is we do not care. The ship, of course, met this disaster. In the still hours of the night. So wear what you would first pick up. Were you forced to sudden flight.
