Sculptors to Exhibit Works

The handsome showroom in which sculptors Malcolm Moran (left) and Don Buby display their works is within a big red barn which stands at 185 S. Hunter, next to Alban's. The pair added carpeting and wall paneling to convert the former barn into a studio. Their studio will be among the 10 open for the Birmingham Arts Festival.

Come One, Come All To Radio Broadcast

Festival visitors are invited to come into the geodesic dome at Shain Park from 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. daily, except Sunday, and watch a live radio broadcast.

Starting Saturday, June 17, three and four-member panels will discuss various phases of the arts over FM radio station WQRS.

Leading the discussions will be Bloomfield Art Association member Betty (Mrs. James W.) Conn, of 30855 Southfield Road, Southfield. A sculptor and mosaic-ist herself, Mrs. Conn leads similar discussions weekly over the FM station's air waves.

PANEL MEMBERS will be leaders in the various fields of the arts scheduled for the talks. Mrs. Conn said the audience will also be encouraged to participate.

Detroit Institute of Arts staff member Franklin Page will take Miss. Conn's place on Friday, June 23.
