A Political Move
Birmingham Republicans plan Oakland County GOP's "Neighbor-to-Neighbor" finance drive to support a recently announced college scholarship fund—the first to be established by a political party. Discussing details of the program are (from left) Mrs. William H. Spinning, 357 Waddington, Alvin R. Balden, Huntington Woods, co-chairman of the drive, and James P. Driver, 1654 Stanley, head of the Birmingham drive. (Photo by Doug Ashley).

Lincoln Down to Earth
federate naval officer, Hunter Lewis, disclosed himself as a pretty French "mademoiselle". His "charms" had captivated the Union man aboard the steamer before he had pulled his guns and, with other disguised Confederates, had taken possession of the ship.
AND ONLY two days before the meeting, Commodore James H. Ward, commander of the federal Polkman facility, had been killed at Mathias Point, 30 miles south on the Potomac in an exchange of gunfire with a group of Confederates. Ward was on the bow of his steamer aiming a gun when he was hit.
In Lincoln's native Kentucky that week, however, the Union cause began to look up. Maj. Gen. William Nelson, a former naval officer, established himself in south-eastern Kentucky with the purpose of enlisting infantry for the Union.
Perhaps, it was a violation of Kentucky's neutrality, but Nelson and a promise of $25,000 in arms from Lincoln, and it would not be long before Kentuckians would be fighting against the Confederacy—the fulfillment of one of Lincoln's fondest, but often forgotten, wishes.
Next week The United States Congress convenes.
