

Warm Weather Comfort

Suits for the sunny season are neat, dressy and right in line with the masculine demand for clothing with built-in warm-weather comfort. The wash-wear suit (left), is in a worsted-look olive tone blend of dacron and cotton. The medium shade gien plaid suit is one of the increasingly popular spring midweights.

- 8) Get the mink wearing the woman.
- 9) On most occasions, a cloth coat. However, a dressy event, a mink coat.
- 10) Fur coats are too heavy for comfort, too expensive, and too ostentatious.
- 11) A well bred girl looks good in anything . . . she should watch her budget though.
- 12) Either a cloth or mink coat is fine . . . economic can decide this one.

Comments regarding hats:

- 1) Small simple hats are fine.
- 2) The less conspicuous, the better.
- 3) Simplicity is the ultimate, either large or small and not too gaudy, solid or few colors.
- 4) I do not care for extreme hats, prefer small and simple designs.
- 5) Small hats preferred for formal wear . . . large hats for the beach.
- 6) Plain hats . . . OK.
- 7) A hat should be just part of an ensemble and not dominate.
- 8) Keep 'em small, keep 'em cute!

New Hats for Men

Spring hats for men—both felts and straws—are trim, light and crushable. The vastly increased use of the crushable featherweight spring-summer beauties probably stems from their enthusiastic acceptance by American men on the move. Great for travel, they can be rolled up and packed in less space than that taken by a shaving kit. Their flexibility also helps them to survive the battering that hats usually take on trains and planes.

COLORS IN these lightweights range from black to pearly gray, and include olive tones, coffee tans, chocolate browns and soft blends that result in vari-hued mixtures.

straw" trims, duo-tones blends of color, really wild bands, and bindings, and fanciful gadgets used for ornaments. Woven fabrics also get a good fashion play in sports hats. Look for bath hats in center-crease or bucket shapes; also madrases in the same styles, and both prints and plaids in caps, too. The newest look in caps are solid colors in textured and linen-like fabrics.
