Should We Call Our Own Tune?

How long will time wait on us? That is ne "X," the unknown quantity, in the ation's effort to recapture the initiative nation's effort to recapture the initiative in this endurance test called the cold war. The question arises not from impatience, nor cynicism, nor impertinence. What prompts it is a sober look at an unpleasant truth. This is the fact that Moscow continues to call the tune to which the West seems impelled to dance.

seems impelled to dance.

The Red strategy is painfully plain: repeated quick shifts of the offensive from one trouble spot to another. We defy them to dislodge us from Berlin and they switch to Matsu and Quemoy. Stalemated there, they confront us with the Curbar rebellion. Things begin to turn(against them in the Congo and at the United Nations, so they divert the action to Laos.

SOME OBSERVERS PREDICT that if SOME OBSERVERS PREDICT that if the West calls the Communists' bluff in Southeast Asia they will renew the Berlin crisis. But could it not be instead that while we partley with them they are setting the stage for an altogether new coup else-where? And could that elsewhere be in South America?

This is a treacherous game. Someday, unless we learn to play it even better and more cunningly than they, their big chance may bome. That must not happen. In the cold war a so-called deterrent weapon is useless. But there is something else the West can and must devise. That is a deterrent strategy. We cannot recapture the initiative so long as we are compelled to zag when the Reds zig. This is a treacherous game. Someday,

We in every part of the North American ontinent, especially in heavy industrial reas like southeastern Michigan, are vulnerable to a Soviet attack—if those devil-ish minds determine to go to war.

Oh, For A Patrick Henry Today!

The most famous words of American oratory are probably Patrick Henry's "Give me liberty, or give me death!" Hen-ry's oratorical ability and the great part he played in the Revolution amply justify Post Office Department in honoring him with a memorial stamp.

Henry played for Virginia the part that Samuel Adams played for Massachusetts, Samuel Adams played for Massachusetts, forwarding the cause of revolt by constant speech-making and organizing effort. He served without much success as a general, his talent being for civilian life. He was twice elected governor of Virginia. An opponent of the Constitution in its origina form, he was perhaps more responsible than any other for the addition of the first 10 amendments known as the Bill of Rights.

Henry declined appointments both for Henry declined appointments both for the secretaryship of state, and the position of chief justice. Both nominations were made by President Washington at a time when Henry's early radicalism had changed to a militant Federalism. He was a Federalist at his death in 1799. His real chievements were his oratory, and his ervices to the Revolution.

Make More Jobs Spend Now—Help To

If half of the savings of the American If naif of the savings of the American people were to be spent within the next several months, on the normal variety of goods and services available, this veritable tidal wave of purchasing power would start our economy on a rapid rise, with subsequent increase in employment.

However, nobody expects such a wibolsubsequent increase in employment.

However, nobody expects such a wholesale release of savings—yet, were people to begin spending some of their money for necessary needs, or spend it now instead of months from now, the economy certainly would be up-graded.

Such thoughts recently were given expression in a speech by Clyde H. Reeme, president of the Udylite Corp., of Detroit.

Titled "A Program for Progress", Reeme urged more persons to cease postponing the purchase of a wide variety of items.

"Unless we buy that car now, have those repairs made to our homes, or purchase other commodities and/or service s we know we shall need, we fail to do what we know we shall need, we fail to do what we can to insure the need for more productive effort, which simply means more employ-ment," he believes.

Reeme's reasoning, of course, is a sound

President Kennedy admits that, if he runs for re-election in 1964, he'll be glad to go on TV to debate his Republican op-onent. Nixon, et al. Better start taking lessons on how to win friends and influence ters via television.

Editorial Page

A Free, Responsible and Aggressive Press Is Democracy's First Line of Defense

The Birmingham Eccentric

lone lug.

Published every Thursday at Birmingham, Mich., in The Eccentric Building, 1225 Bowers Street Telephone Midwest 4-1100

GEORGE R. AVERILL Editor and Publisher PAUL NEAL AVERILL Business Manager GEORGE WM. AVERILL Managing Editor DAVID F. GIBB Advertising Manager

From The Eccentric's Point of View ...

Beyond any question of doubt, the good old United States is drifting into a Social-istic State. This condition comes about, very largely, because our citizens are not acquainted with the historic facts that, acquainted with the historic facts that, wherever tried, Socialism has always failed to provide people with the environment of freedom of action, of hope of reward . . . and without these two fundamental human needs, mankind makes very little

Most people fail to appreciate inherited Most people fail to appreciate inherited benefits. People seem to value and thus fight to retain, those things for which they have to struggle to win. Because to-day's U.S. generations of youth and middle age citizens know too little of the types of struggles that caused our Colonists to win freedom from England and to launch this once greatest of republics . . . can they be expected to oppose the drift into the Welfare State? (Remember that old axiom: "It's three generations from shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves"?)

President Kennedy admittedly is young and full of vigor. He is willing to work very hard, long hours, etc. Reports from the nation's Capital state that JFK wants to know very much about most of what goes on . . . as though any one man could to know very miner about most of what goes on . . as though any one man could so operate and have time left to weigh and decide the volume of momentous problems. We trust that Mr. Kennedy will distinguish between mere quantity and the more important quality phases of his tremendously big job.

Another typically American saga of a human achievement has been written as John Dykstra, 62, 1147 Glengarry Dr., Birningham, was elevated to the presidency of the Ford Motor Co. This man started out as a tool and die maker. He came to the U.S. from the Netherlands when he was a youth. By attending night school in Detroit, then supplementing his studies in the started of the started of the supplemental processing the started of the supplemental process. via correspondence school courses, Dykstra made progressive strides in industry. At Ford he developed manufacturing procedures to a maximum of efficiency and per-His new responsibility again proves that a dedicated and self-disciplined man may reach top places in the American

City Beat

"There are many court decisions which we like, which we believe in and which we adhere to.
"But then there's a ruling which we dislike, which we believe is in error, "But we can't have a system in which we obey the decisions we agree with and ignore those we find unfavorable."

THESE WORDS are closely akin to those ut-tered by Commissioner William H. Burgum at a recent Birmingham City Commission meeting. Several residents voiced dissatisfaction over a Michigan Supenne Court ruling of some years ago and now desired that the commission find some way to circumvent it.

age and now desired that the commission find some way to circumvent it. But, as Burgum pointed out, you can't say, "We don't like this ruling, so we aren't going to ob-serve it." It's the same old story: Laws are made for other people, not for me.

TAKE THE SITUATION in the South.

Let the U.S. Supreme Court render a decision favorable to proponents of segregation, and there is no question that it is a wine, sound, intelligent raining and should be followed closely raining and should be followed the followed the protects there is.

And look at the efforts to side-step that muchanaligand ruling. Abolishing public schools to avoid integration, for instance.

The obvious point of concern his! How strong a government would we have if we followed the practice of obeying decisions we approved and disobeying those we did not approve?

WHEN THIS writer walked into the city com-mission room 10 minutes early for the meeting of April 24, he was surprised to see a meeting al-mission from 10 minutes early to the incense of April 24, he was surprised to see a meeting already in progress. Then a recollection—student commission meeting in connection with Civic Control Day. Discussing city speed laws, student commissioners sounded much like regular city commissioners professional, judicious, concerned. They ended their business with a resolution respective of the processing gratuates to commissioners and other city officials for their assistance throughout the day.

Ву

KEN

WEAVER

And when the official commission meeting study, Mayor Florence H. Willett commended them for their "very fine manner and the seriousness" they portrayed in assuming government positions for the day.

for the day.

THIS SAME meeting was marked by another example of student interest in city government. Police Chief Ralph Moxley was questioned about a number of parking violation tickets issued to worshippers at a certain church one Sunday. Moxley said tickets were issued enly in cases where it was felt they were fully warranted-parking in front of fire hydratus, for example. "Are we supposed to enforce the law only six days a week?" the chief wondered.

When up popped a young man to his support, "I think the chief has the fight idea. You can't tell him to enforce the laws six days but ignore it on the seventh."

Moxley smiled broadly. The mayor compended the student for his views and for having the courage to express them.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

Claims Dewey Didn't Found PE Association

To the Editor:

Had Mr. Barrett in his letter in The Eccentric of April 12 made use of primary rather than secondary sources, he would have found that the Progressive Education Association was not organized by John Dewey but by a group of teachers and parents from private schools called together by Stanwood Cobb, ther head of Chevy Chase Country Day School.
The first public meeting was held for the public progressive the progressive of the publisher, I cannot quote from the group.

SO WAS Colonel Francis Parker

SO WAS Colonel Francis Parker

in directly.

school and appointed a commission on the relation between school and college, on the relation between school and college, on the relation between school and college of the college of the

Sgt. York's Taxes Settled; How About A. C. Powell's Case?

To the Editor:

To the Editor:

Now it's settled! Aging, bedridden World War I hero Sct. Alvin C. York has settled up with socialism.

The States Tax Commissioner.

Little States Tax Commissioner.

The States Tax Commissioner capted a $25,000 check from this bureaucrat-ridden patriot in full settlement of his alleged income tax indebtedness.

Mortimer Caplin has graciously accepted: a $25,000 check from this bureaucrat-ridden, patriot in full bureaucrateries, and the producing food, elebihing and shelter, even here in the attoc enter. For the property of the proper in Washing.

Dewey and his educationa.

phy were a strong influence upon the group.

SO WAS Colonel Francis Parker from Quincy, Masa, public schools, letter the Cook County Normal state of the Cook County Normal of the University of Chie a continue of the Chie and the chief should be the center around which subject matter should be organized and that children's lord the continue of the # ion. In 1980 the association extended is influence into the secondary chool and appointed a commission on the relation between school and Could Be Used to

To the Editor: Ever notice the great amount of vacant rural land in Oakland Coun-

Seems as if there is enough good land to produce food and thus employ the droves of unemployed control of the seems of the

Happenings of Long Ago

Bits of News Gleaned From Old Files Of The Eccentric

50 YEARS AGO May 5, 1911

May 5, 1911

A special meeting of the council and a citizens mass meeting is called by president George E. Daines today at 8 p.m. to consider the advisability of assisting the distribution of the council of the counc

The problem of successfully providing for the large number of school children... has become an action of the large number of the school key with the school key uppils are entering continuously. A class room will enter the first grade room on Sept. 1, 1911 as compared with the class of 12 entering from ber. Our greatest need is a primary school. (From a letter by Rhola M. Starr, Superintendent of Schoola.)

on Schools.)

May 7, 1931

A new schedule of greens free, established with the expressed prices of the school of t

Among important matters discussed at the Birminsham Board of Education meeting Monday night at Baldwin School was the problem of obtaining sufficient sufficient to the sufficient sufficie school purposes.

A total of $12.895.50 was pledged in the annual Community House roll call which ended Monday night with a final dinner for the scores of campaign workers, team cap-

n Old Files Of The Eccentric

1 FAIRS AGO
May 2 1945
1 An immediate decision by the City Commission on the proposal to bring temporary homes to Birsituation for returning veterans was promised Monday by Mayor Mitton F. Mallender. His announces reason in which the present sustions was thoroughly studied by the commission and Howard R. Eates and Howard R. Eates and Howard R. Sets Commission and Howard R. Sets Commission

of the Birminghain vectors coul-dinnight and a noual Clean - up immighain's annual Clean - up mally opens Monday and continues through May 11. Donald C. Egbert, general chairman, announced today that the various tasks had been campaign was anticipated. He ex-pressed the hope that every per-pensed the hope that every here.

Of the two Birmingham scheboard members whose terms expithis June, only one has chosen stand for re-election, The Eccent learned this week. Wyle E. Grow 647 Hanna, treasurer of the boa stated he will seek his third as a school board member.

STRICTLY FRESH

Some women are more adept at cooking up things over a telephone than over a stove.

The weatherman is the high-est paid fiction writer in the

Our pai next to us here quit his griping when the boas east "Be thankful for all the problems that come up. If we didn't have them you wouldn't have a job. And if they weren't so tough someone with less ability would be sitting in your chair."

BY GEORGE WM. AVERILL One Thing or Another

For the 15 times this columnist has noted the annual April reorganization meeting of the Birmingham city commission, only once has the commission failed to devote the isset-than-60 seconds to routine appointment of its the College of the College of Supervision. The College of Supervision course of Supervisions of Supervisions and College of Supervisions of Supervisions of Supervisions. The College of Supervisions of Supervisio

THE OFFICIAL BUT UNRECORDED reason

THE OFFICIAL BUT UNRÉCORDED reason was "lack of ine" (because the hour was late.).

The real reason: the other six city commissioners are concerned that the four supervisors seem to be representing the county-at-large more than they are Birmingham.

Mayor Florence Willett has been instructed to arrange a commission-supervisors "information exchange" within the next few weeks, One of the main agenda topics is expected to be this matter of representations.

For several years, this column has been suggesting to city officials that they should really—short stelly—advertes the location of the city's five numelical parking lots. Present signs are so inconspicuous that montarists have to be looking at the small signs before they see, them.

So it's nice to report this week that Mayor Florence Willett and City Manager L. R. Gare have informed this column that the old signs are coming down, to be replaced with ones much more visible.

A cold war is one in which opposing nations shoot from the lip.

It's easy to predict what is going to happen, he difficulty arises in explaining why it

If they had it to do over again, many people would make another try. Some of us would call in

If you had no problems to solve day after day, what on earth would you do with your time?

The trouble with many club programs is that the speaker is asked to fill up too many minutes.

By DENI SCANLON Talk of the Towns

In the busy world of an adult, there are almost many things forgotten as there are re

In the busy world of an adult, there are almost as many things forgotten as there are re-membered. Ask somebody what they read yesterday or last week and the result will probably be "the jist of it." Very few of us still retain our child-hood ability to rective verbair. But those verses learned at an early age seldom fade.

This writer remembers:
"Adam was the first man that ever was invented.
"He lived long ago and never was contented.
"He was made out of mud in the days gone by "And was hung on the fence in the sun to dry.
"Then along came Noah stumbling in the dark.
"He found himself a hammer and built himself an ark;

"Then along came the animals, two by two,
"Along came the zebra and the kangaroo.
"Along came the lilon, along came the bear,
"Along came the babboon without any hair.
"For 40 days and 40 nights they sailed upon

"For 40 Gays and the pond
"And Noah kicked the lioness out because she was a blonde!"

A busy Birmingham lawyer recalls:
"When I was a little boy, just so high,
"Momma used to spank me made and so me cry.
"Momma used to spank me made and the me cry.
"Momma used to spank me cry.
"But Papa takes a bigger stick and tends right to lit."

Another resident, who, incidently, is a writer, added this one to the collection: "In promulgating esoteric cogitations and articulating superficial sentimentalities and philosophical observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosities."

A Franklin woman learned many a little song but enjoyed more than ever "in those days" singing them with a substitute set of words. Her version of "iffree Blind Mice" gbest:
"A tro of sightless rodents,
"Perceive how they scurry,
"Perceive how they scurry,
"Perceive how they scurry,
"They all pursued the agriculturalist's spouse "Who decapitated their appendages with a kitchen utensil.
"You never witnessed such an exhibition in your time,
"As a tro of sightless rodents."

your time,
"As a trio of sightless rodents."

And to conclude, a Seaholm student came up with her family's "off to bed march."
She and her siblings would chant this: "Happy dreams, awest repose. Sleep on your back and save your beat"