If you were to lose your freedom, are you really aware of what you do lose? No longer would you be able to speak and write anything antagonistic to the State. You rulers would get and try to keep their power by the use of force — the "police State". You would not be able to worship, openly, as your conscience would desire. You would work at a job of the State's own choosing. You probably would not own property. Think about this!

Relaxing after a rehearsal of "The Magic Flute" are Kingswood students Mary Jane Hilder, Lisa Graham, Peggy Beier and Felicity Hannay. The girls are all from the Birmingham-Bloomfield area.

Kingswood to Present 'Magic Flute' on Friday

More than 60 period costumes have been made by Mrs. Pearl Cooley of the service staff at Kingswood School Cranbrook for a one-night performance of "The Magic Flute" at Kingswood Auditorium on Friday at 8 p.m. All seventh and eighth graders will take part in the Mozart opera, in which all parts are sung. Also in the cast are Barney Crouse, Cranbrook junior from East Lansing as Papageno; Linda Allen, Kingswood senior from Pleasant Ridge, as Papagena; and Cranbrook senior Bob Hughes, Dayton, O., as the slave-servant.

THE ORCHESTRA, conducted by Dr. William Casoy of Brookside School, includes Emily Godshalk, Holland, Mich.; Jackie Zuelzer, Pleasant Ridge; Ann Casoy, Bloomfield Hills; Kathie Shore, Birmingham; and Jack Pulley, Clawson. Faculty musicians are Mrs. Margaret Houston and Walter Reed. OTHER MEMBERS are Karen, Paul and David Eicher, Jean Hittia and Larry Reynolds, all of Pontiac, and Louis Stout from the University of Michigan. Mrs. Lee Steele, Miss Louise Hohmeyer and Mrs. Jean Hohmeyer will also be in the orchestra. Original sets have been designed by Floyd Cooley, superintendent of buildings and grounds at Kingswood School. THE ENTIRE production is under the direction of Miss Bertha Seifert, music teacher at Kingswood. Cynthia Nash and Dorothy Withers, both of Bloomfield Hills, are respective presidents of the seventh and eighth grades. Following the performance, there

By VEE VOELKER

Once again the excitement of the all-school elections has hit Seaholm as students campaign for the offices of next year's student congress. Four students are running for the office of treasurer. They are Dick Beaubien, Sue Hebblewhite, Tom Stevens and Lucy Whitley. Sally Bowering and Emily Edwards are running for the office of secretary with Geoff Gilbert, the lone candidate for the office of vice-president.

Competing for the position of president are Dan Fox, Greg Frontier and John Schette. Elections will take place today.

AS A CONTINUATION of Civic Control Day, a day when various seniors help control the city of Birmingham, the 28 participating students visited the Recorder's Court and the main police station in Detroit.

By actually sitting in on various trials the students were able to get a first hand idea about how they are run. Touring the downtown police station enable students to understand the operation of a large scale police force plus the problems and interesting happenings connected with it.

GAIL LOPATA, selected as editor of the Michigan Week page of the Highlander, has been busy preparing material for the May 16 issue of the paper. The page will include editorials, a pictorial history of the schools in Birmingham and Michigan facts and history.

Bloomfield Hills High B'field High Honors Scholars at Banquet

Bloomfield Hills High School opened the month of May with the annual honors banquet, sponsored by the Rotary Club, at the junior high school, last Monday night. At this banquet, the top 10 scholastic students and the three most improved students of each class were honored and awarded. Several students are going to Europe—some to visit families, some on scholarships, and some for general pleasure; a great many students have jobs lined up; last, but not least, many are looking forward to the popular well-used plan of "doing nothing".

A VARIETY SHOW is in the planning stage, and is scheduled for May 26; also, the B-Club Dance will be held tonight. As for the seniors, they've already started developing "Senioritis" which has encouraged many plans for prom and commencement.

OF COURSE, college is another major topic of thought and discussion. (Paul Kasameyer has received

S'field Seniors Hear Advertising Lecture

The beneficial aspects of advertising were stressed to Southfield High seniors on May 4 in an auditorium lecture by Bud Rozema of Birmingham, secretary and director of training of the Campbell-Ewald advertising firm. "Advertising, a $16 billion a year business, does much to help improve products, stir competition, lower costs, and conduct public service campaigns," Rozema said. Researcher Don David and TV specialist Ray Dellman, Seniors are studying advertising and its role with mass media as a requirement of senior English.

Bloomfield Country Day Seniors Celebrate Annual 'Skip Day'

By CYNTHIA GEISLER

Bloomfield Country Day School underclassmen found out May 4 what school would be like without any seniors. The senior class celebrated its "Senior Skip Day" at Belle Isle and tried a hand at the culinary arts by roasting hogs for the picnic lunch. After lunch the girls toured the botanical gardens and zoo. Having worked up a sizeable appetite, the seniors returned to Mrs. L. G. Boughner's where they changed into dresses and drove to Miss Margorie Sallie's for dinner. Miss Sallie served shrimp creole, tomato aspic, tossed salad, asparagus tips and a strawberry dessert.

BLOOMFIELD COUNTRY DAY girls took a chartered bus to Detroit May 5 to the Wayne State University Theater where they saw Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing". The girls enjoyed the romantic theme of the play and have decided that perhaps studying "Macbeth" and "Hamlet" won't be so bad after all.

many booths. There will be trampolines, the fish pond, and a puppy to a lucky winner. To shade you from the sun you'll need a hat. Know where to get one? Kathy Poole and Heather Stirling will be selling them.

What is a fair without balloons and lollipops? Look for Barb Jenkins, Patti Richter and Barb Kosselman for balloons with a strawberry motif. Nancy Booth and Diane Larson will be the lollipop girls. There will be pony rides and beach-car rides and a variety of games. Some of the girls will be helping the customers, carrying packages to the pick-up station.

OTHER GIRLS wearing fashions from the Penny Finchers will promenade to music by Roger Brown and Paul Becker during the luncheon hour. Models will be Carol Blodgett, Nancy Brickner, Beth Burton, Sue Jordan, Nancy Judd, Martv Ploch and JoAnne Shays.
