A COMPLETE SECRETARIAL COURSE to Prepare You for the Fascinating World of Business

Today's secretary is an important person. She works with the "big people" in her organization. She is more than a secretary... she is assistant to the executive... since she only works with executives. Today's secretary needs more than shorthand and typing ability to meet the many and varied duties modern business requires.

The secretary of today is very often consulted in important decisions and many organizational policies have been shaped with the help of an executive's secretary. She represents her boss and makes him look good by her manner and personality. It is her voice that answers the phone... it is she who screens and meets callers... it is she who first met, and it is she who sets the tone and impresses the business visitor with the importance and prestige of her employer by her tact and diplomacy.

She lightens the burden of her boss by taking over many of his duties, especially details. She arranges his routine day by day. She prepares him for important meetings and interviews, and even prepares his travel itinerary. She sometimes knows more about certain phases of the business than does her employer. Well-paid opportunities await you if you are fully equipped to meet these and other challenging duties.
