Carl B. Morris and Frank L. Bromley. He was survived by a son, Col. Martin Bigelow of the Marine Corps, Calif. and two daughters, Mr. T. R. Donovan of Bloomfield Hills and Mrs. Irwin Neff of Birmingham.

NOT MANY of us are old enough to have known him. He was remembered by Congressman George A. Dondero who, in 1906, heard Bigelow relate the action in which he lost his arm. He was remembered, too, by George B. Mitchell who worked for Bigelow at the post office and recalled the painful times his amputation gave him. He is remembered, most of all, by Mrs. Neff, his daughter, who has staged his personal papers and belongings with the Centennial commission and has made this account possible.

Chaperones for the semi-formal party were the Rehards and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Rice.
