Body Odor
Q. A neat, tidy person about 60 years of age developed a very offensive body odor. What could cause this?

A. This sort of problem is often difficult to explain and just as difficult to correct. Neglected personal hygiene isn't necessarily involved and use of deodorant deodorants often does little or no good. By way of encouragement, the patient with a new tranquilizer noticed that in several cases, marked body odor disappeared. Why this happened isn't known but further tests are planned. It may be that the physicians have hit upon a new approach to this very common problem.

Vegetarians—Cancer
Q. Are vegetarians less likely to have cancer than people who eat meat?

A. There is no medical evidence that vegetarians are less prone to cancer than meat eaters. The Banus of Central and Southern Africa often have cancer of the liver and other people eat virtually no meat.

Medical Mirror
Q. How much blood does the heart pump in a day?
A. In the course of a day your heart pumps 10,000 quarts of blood through almost 12,000 miles of arteries. The heart is a highly efficient machine, more efficient than any man-made anything yet devised by man.

Crying often Unnecessary?

Q. Is it natural for babies to cry?

A. Probably not. The belief that babies cry when they want something leads parents to overlook other ways in which babies try to make their needs known. The parents expect and wait for the baby to cry. The baby soon learns that he must cry to be understood. Quite possibly, if the baby's needs were met before he became distressed, he would not cry at all.
