On Oct. 28, the senior class presented a Chinese styled play, "The Yellow Jacket," by George C. Hazleton and Benjamine. Among the members in the cast were Betty Wright, Mary Milne, Sally Lynch, Roberta Reising, Sully Fuchs, Kathy Severin, Carolyn Eastings, Susy Mays and Josephine Dudek.

Others were Patricia Yingling, Denise Pauley, Lynn Taylor, Merrill McLoughlin, Martha Forman, Mary Affleck and Patricia Gass.

The atmosphere was created even before the play began when the four ushers, Marjitta Derwin, Donna DeLong, Ann Alnoworth and Naval Hamady walked down the aisle of the auditorium carrying incense.

TEA WAS SERVED between the acts. Music with a Chinese flavor was provided by Miss Bertha Seifert, Katherine Shore and Mary Todd.

Mrs. Nancy Porter, who directed the play, was assisted by Jane Josey, the student director.

Heads of the many committees were Marilyn Garabrant, make-up, Diane Tynan, program, Judy Bartholomew, tickets and Jennifer Wand, lights. The other chairmen were Barbara Levy, publicity, Kathy Mansfield, properties, Sally Lynch stage manager and Marjitta Derwin, ushers.

DURING THE WEEK of Oct. 16-21 Kingswood's headmistress, Miss Marion Goodale, attended a conference on admissions to college. It was held at Duke University in Durham, N. C. There were 68 delegates representing schools from California to Massachusetts.

It was in 1936 that the first blind person was licensed as a vending stand operator in a federal building. Now over 2,000 blind men and women earn their living this way.

Cranbrook Cranes

Saturday is homecoming time at Cranbrook and the final drive by the many committees involved to finish last-minute details is in progress.

The weekend will commence with a traditional pep rally Friday night at 7:30. The students of the lower school will be selling souvenirs and refreshments at both games, to complement the 'C' Club sales of hot dogs and pop.

During the halftimes at the football game, students who are not on either of the teams or on one of the committees will present the annual halftime show: a mock Civil War battle, under the direction of Mr. Carleton McLain Jr. and featuring the Cranbrook band.

The public is invited to come to all three games and a reception will be held in the auditorium after the football game. The school glee club will do several numbers at that time.

The weekend will culminate in a Cranbrook Kingswood alumni dance on Saturday evening, beginning at 7:30.

On Oct. 24, the second in this year's series of Humanities lectures was held for the senior class. Minoru Yamasaki, the famed architect, addressed the group.

Mr. Yamasaki used the majority of his time to show a series of slides which included the planning of buildings, their construction and view of the completed product.

As he went through the slides, he related some of the problems which he encountered on each individual project and then told how the solutions were found. After the lecture, a short question and answer period was held.

In addition to 14 semi-finalists, nine Cranbrook seniors have been named as recipients of commendations in the National Merit Scholarship competition. These students are among 25,000 from across the nation: David Anderson, Chris Frederick, Larry Warren, Richard Nelson, Norman Francis, Richard Senter, Henry Statkin, Joel Sagan, and Monty Wall.

Homecoming festivities are now safely over. The 1961 Homecoming Festivities at Bloomfield Hills High School were concluded Oct. 21 by the annual dance. This year Homecoming lasted over a four-day period with the activities commencing on Oct. 18.

Wednesday marked the date for the hour-long pep assembly. The theme was "This Is Your Life, Mr. Donald Hoff" (Mr. Don Hoff is coach of the Bloomfield Hills High School football team and is athletic director). During the assembly the winner of the class cheering trophy was announced. The seniors won the trophy.

Thursday night was the annual bonfire, ringed by crowds of students who cheered with the cheerleaders. A Holly player in effigy was thrown into the fire and members of the team spoke about the game, scheduled for the next day.

THE GAME FRIDAY afternoon between the Barons of Bloomfield and the Broncos of Holly was preceded by the Homecoming parade of class floats and Homecoming queen candidates. The sophomore float showed a bear kicking a bronco over the goalposts. The theme was "Kick the Hills with Gobs of Holly."

The juniors had a bear in a chariot whipping a bronco pulling the chariot. The theme was "Whip 'Em Barons." But the seniors triumphed in the float contest and the theme, "It's in the Bag, Barons."

Steve DeRiow, vice-president of the senior class, accepted the trophy for the senior class. This was the second year in a row that the class of '62 had won the float contest, and it was the first time ever that a single class had won both the cheering trophy and the float trophy in a single year.

HOMECOMING COURT consisted of a sophomore and a junior princess and five queen candidates from the senior class. Sophomore princess was Sherry Lundgren; junior class princess was Ginny Van Dyk. The five senior queen candidates were as follows: Karen McCallipine, Marcee Merrill, Sandy Sarnes, Phyllis Listman, Pat Christiansen. Karen McCallipine was elected queen.

The dance Saturday night was presided over by Karen. The music was provided by the band. Decorations consisted of pennants from various colleges.

Do American students care about the problems of the world? The answer to this problem proved affirmative for one group of freshman history students as they observed UN Day this week.

Under the direction of Patricia Schmitt, a dramatic presentation, "Cavalade of Human Rights," showed the life-long struggle for freedom. In various historical settings, from ancient Babylonia to the Belgian Congo the tableau and dialogue revealed a conflict which is still unresolved but moving ever closer to center in the teen-age conscience.

The entire assembly was an outgrowth of a unit of study of the significance of the organization of the United Nations. The entire history department participated.

"Fish Fun"—these two words, swimming along as two modernistic fish, form the title for a display of art work created by Sr. Marie Suzanne's sophomore art class.

Mounted on a sea-blue background with electric blue and green curling out at both ends are a number of original deep-sea scenes. Sr. Anita, who has watched the Caribbean sea life from a glass-bottom boat, declares them very realistic.

The artists who are responsible for this colorful display are Val Boetwick, Joan Herrgott, Jeanette La Clair, Patricia Keil, Shirley Devine, Gretchen Schottdorf, Karen Pekala, Susan Janacek and Theresa Schwartz.

Others are Barbara Haugh, Sharon Finan, Betty Sieler, Dawn Randall and Elizabeth Bridge.

Miss Evelyn Greathouse, representative of a cosmetic firm, provided a demonstration for the entire student body on the proper techniques of applying make-up for every occasion. This demonstration was performed at an assembly on Friday.

THE DRAMA CLUB held its first meeting on Oct. 24. Miss Essler is the faculty moderator. Various committees were appointed to prepare the agenda for the future meetings. It was decided that the next meeting would be devoted to hearing skits and readings from the club's members and pledges to determine the type of talent in the group.
