

Garden Club Holds Christmas Workshops

The Osage Garden Club has just completed a series of five Tuesday morning Christmas workshops under the direction of Mrs. Frederick Stefanski, Osage flower show chairman.

The members met with their materials—and ideas galore to plan along to fellow members at the workshop held at the Birmingham Community House. Out of these sessions came unusual, original, and novel Christmas decorations. The Christmas tree, novel colored tissue paper oriental birds attached to balloon sticks—a delight for the small fry at the holiday season.

Also for the children, were ice cream cones, done in popcorn, and candies to resemble a Christmas tree. More Christmas cones were made as ornaments to hang on the yule tree.

THESE WORKSHOP items and others such as kneeling pads, candle-boards and the Osage Cook Book entitled "Fabulous Foods", will be on display and for sale by the Osage Garden Club at the Christmas Market in Northville on December 2.

The Christmas Market and demonstration show will be sponsored by the Michigan division of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association under the leadership of Mrs. John C. Galloway and will be held from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Northville Community Center.

Mrs. Frederick Stefanski of Dowling Road is in charge of donations of attend.

Osage committee members in charge of projects for the Christmas Market, to include handmade articles from other Michigan garden clubs, are Mrs. Clifford Roland, Mrs. Ray Roberts, Mrs. Joseph Dvorski, Mrs. Don Davis, Mrs. Edward Hopper and Osage president, Mrs. E. A. Linder.

Mrs. William Jamieson opened her home on North Adams Road to members of Osage Garden Club for a meeting on Christmas eve on Monday afternoon. Giving the club scores of ideas was guest speaker Mrs. Sally Rank in a demonstration talk, "Decorating the House for Christmas." Tea time followed the meeting.

Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills Society Notes

And where do you think the place is to see and be seen in our town these days?

Christmas shopping or working at the many holiday bazaars? Lunching and spending Friday afternoons with the T. G. I. Fer's at the Kingsley?

Dining at the Regency or DAC before taking in the Fisher? Sunday brunching at any of the clubs? Browsing in the stacks at Baldwin library? Enduring back combing at your favorite beauty parlor? Playing Saturday squash at the B&C? Picking out party favors at your favorite haute couture? Selecting holiday invitations. The answer to all this is NO. These places no longer rate as top spots to catch the real social scene in Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills. The place these days is the new helpfully dry cleaning establishment where our most notable actors bring their loads of dry cleaning daily.

Local matrons, arms loaded with cashmere, have even had to line up waiting for available machines. One almost shed tears when the manager gently informed her that her mink jacket could not be cleaned this way. Since the whole process takes about an hour, one can do errands around town, play bridge there, knit, hit the nearby pancake house for a few thousand calories, or else group for gossip with friends on location.

The self serve dry cleaners is becoming a really social place. We wouldn't be surprised if the next step would be for someone to cater to have their coming out party there!
