APS Festival To Be Featured At Meadowbrook

Plans for the second annual American Field Service Festival were discussed at a tea Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Charles F. Moore Jr., of Lahser Road, Bloomfield Hills, and committee chairman were elected from the Birmingham area to work on the festival project. Mrs. Moore is chairman of this area.

The festival will be held May 6 at Meadowbrook Farms, the home of Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson and will include interesting attractions such as an international Gift Shop offering rare and unusual selections from many different countries.

FOREIGN food will be featured, particularly exotic pastries and cakes. A handicraft shop with hand-knitted sweaters and a flower booth with arrangements for sale by well known florists are also planned.

The event is being organized jointly by APS throughout Metropolitan Detroit with the objective of raising funds for the National APS chapter in New York, enabling them to participate more fully and effectively in bringing students to this country from the troubled areas of the world.

Recent acquisitions at the Michigan State University library include an outstanding collection of 6,700 books and 3,000 pamphlets and reprints covering every aspect of rural life in France from Charlemagne to Louis Philippe.

Santa's Helpers

Santa is getting lots of help this year and 154 underprivileged little girls will be made happy this Christmas when the Goodfellows bring them these dolls. The dolls were dressed by members of the Ford Girls Club and by families of employees of the Tractor and Implement Division, Ford Motor Co. Before the dolls were turned over to Santa, three were selected as winners in a doll fashion-show. Holding the dolls are Joan Flowerday, club representative; and Merritt D. Hill of E. Glengary Circle, Birmingham, Ford Motor Co. vice president and Tractor Implement Division general chairman. Proud "fathers" of the winning dolls are (from left) Theodore Carlson, A. R. Siemicki and Otomars Gulbis.

REFLECTIONS

SUMMER a glorious summer, is behind us and autumn is almost gone. Never, however, have we seen so many beautiful roses, begonias and chrysanthemums regaling our gardens so late in the season. Could be due to proper fertilizing, weeding, mulching, pruning, etc., with a little help from above.

ROSES need some attention at this time if they are to be tip-top next year. We are disturbed, however, at the large number of people who have mulched their plants already. This is WRONG! They may be supplied with bone meal, may be pruned, SHOULD be killed by now BUT they should not be mulched until the ground is well frozen.

BULBS should be planted before the ground gets so hard you lose interest. To encourage you a little—read on:

BIRDS are everywhere (as well as outside our window) as we write this. They have been great help all year as one of the more important insect controls known to man. So now we are feeding them because there is still work to be done. Have you watched a nuthatch leave the feeder and run up and down the branches of the tree? It is digging out overwintering insects, larvae and eggs. When the tree is clean he will come back for a seed or two from the suet cake or feeder. What an ally! FEED 'EM AND REAP!!

INVENTORY has just been taken and we are amazed at the excellent material we have that has escaped your attention so—to encourage you a little—read on:

SALES have not been too successful in our shop, probably because they do not include fur coats, hats and jumpers. Well, anything left will appear in the spring at regular prices and as we reflect on this paradox we are sure that at that time we will have to reorder.
