Leaves, Toys Left On Public Sidewalk Called Disgraceful

To the Editor: I think it is unfortunate that in a respectable community like Birmingham people should be allowed to leave burned leaves in the middle of the public sidewalk and their children's tricycles and doll carriages scattered on everyone else's lawn.

This is bad enough during the day but it is worse at night when it is almost impossible to see the leaves until you step in them. Imagine what you would feel like doing if you stepped out of your door some night and tripped over some neighbor child's tricycle, and when you returned it, you stepped in a pile of wet burned leaves on the public sidewalk.

This is not only disgraceful, but extremely selfish and I think something should be done to correct this situation.
