

All Set for the Club

The latest in fall cocktail dresses were modeled at the Kingsley Inn at an afternoon fashion show. Costume at the left is a royal blue two-piece cocktail dress designed with a sleeveless jacket and has a wide band of royal bugle beads. Also featured was a pale green peau de soie dress featuring a sweetheart neckline, three quarter length sleeves and self bow in front over a full skirt. Outfits available at Hilda's.

Odd Items About Fashion

A Cycle!—Now that vests are coming back so strongly, can we expect to see the return of watch fobs, watch chains, Phi Beta Kappa keys, gold footballs?

OLDTIMERS: Remember all the use you once got out of a button-hook—fastening starched collars, spats and high-buttoned shoes?

FROM THE MAIL—Q. "Is it all right to wear a button-down collar shirt with formal wear?"

A. Absolutely not. A tuxedo requires a certain formality and tradition. And the only proper accessory traditionally is a dress shirt—with studs.

Travel Note—U.S. Tourists who get suits made in Hong Kong come back looking well-dressed (like well-dressed Hong Kongers, if that's the word!)

Color Trends—Watch for a new color concept in shirts and sportswear—a pinkish shade called "coral". (Remember the success of pink?).

'Male-a-Props'

"A well-tied tie is the first serious step in life."—Oscar Wilde

"If it were not for the invention of clothes, there would be precious little government, society, law and order, or morals."—D. H. Lawrence

"Take an hour to dress, always wear suspenders, in public be gartered, flash at least an inch of cuff below jacket sleeves. Always wear a vest with a single-breasted suit, avoid an excess of jacket padding and get chummy with a good tailor."—Adolph Menjou

"Clothes, more than stembogens, make the skier."—Author Marvin Kitman

"Putting on ski clothes has an exhilarating effect on most males—the heavy boots, the trim pants and the ski jacket with its intriguing hood. I now seem to become a strange knightly paragon. . . . Many an unglamorous figure assumes an extraordinarily dashing air wearing these singular garments."—Author Duncan McDougald

"For a man, a tailor is a person who provides him with suits. For a woman, a dressmaker is a genius or an idiot, a master or a complete blunderer or sometimes both."—Psychoanalyst Dr. Theodor Reik

"Style is the dress of thoughts." Lord Chesterfield

Old-Time Favorite

College men are sticking to traditional favorites for back-to-school 1961, such as natural-shoulder plaid shetland sports jacket with pleated dark flannel slacks; a button-down oxford shirt and silk rep tie; a solid V-neck lambswool pullover sweater and a dark wool overcoat with an acrylic pile "shearling" lining and a similarly lined detachable hood. The overcoat has raglan sleeves and "action" side vents.
