

SUBURBAN SCENE

Show at the Lightguard Armory. She owns a child tea-set in lavender Staffordshire in the bee-hive pattern. The set dates back approximately 130 years, which belonged to Ermina Augusta Mansfield of Maine. Born in 1830, Miss Mansfield played with the dishes as a child. The set came to Mrs. Calder, who is a direct descendant, in May of 1943.

Remaining items are five saucers, four handleless cups, tea set with cover, a covered bowl and a cream pitcher. Mrs. Calder presented a plaque Tuesday by George Holly Sr. of the Holly Co. The show will open to the public tomorrow evening at 7 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Mrs. Calder became interested in lavender when she became acquainted with Bertha Robbins of Pinehurst, N. C., who was known in antique circles as the "Lavender Lady". The set of dishes which Mrs. Calder the title, was in her opinion second best. She prizes most highly an English school desk which was given to her by Mrs. Robbins.

Mrs. Calder works in the Walnut Lake School library and is a Red Cross Volunteer, a member of the First Methodist Church and assistant circle leader.

'Come See' Party

If anyone tells you he's going to a party at a sewage disposal plant Sunday, don't call for the men in white suits. There really is such a party from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday at the former Birmingham sewage disposal plant.

"It won't be fancy," says board member Mrs. Harold Drew, of Stratford Lane, Bloomfield Hills, as she discusses the Bloomfield Art Association members' first social get-together of the season.

IT'S CALLED a "Come See" party. Members are invited for refreshments and to see for themselves how their new headquarters at 1516 S. Cranbrook Road looks "Before" the "After."

Remodeling work begins soon on converting the city's now-abandoned plant into an art center. (Work on the center's scent was handled last June, immediately after the plant was leased from the city.)

BAA Social Chairman Mrs. Louis E. Dean is in charge of Sunday's party. She has assigned Mrs. William L. Dennis the task of decorating the vacant building, where big open vaults will soon be covered over. Mrs. Dennis has accepted the artistic challenge. She's calling her decorations theme "Out of This World."

Family Service Directors Meet

To start the fall program, the Board of Directors of Family Service of Oakland County, entertained the staff last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Buckner of Cove Lane, Walnut Lake. This was an informal gathering at which the work of the agency for the coming year was reviewed.

MRS. RODERICK Taylor, assisted by Mrs. Paul N. Averill, Mrs. Raymond Cole, Mrs. Edmund McKenzie and Mrs. Clifford West were responsible for the arrangements. A staff committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Howard McLennan, assisted by Mrs. John Farley and Mrs. Robert Lewis, planned the program.

First and foremost, a slide series to be used for programs requested by community groups was unveiled. This is titled, "Family in Focus" and depicts the problems that a mother and father have with their ten-year-old son, and how Family Service is able to help the parents and child.
