Space is not artificially created on the flat surface by perspective, but by dynamic tensions inherent in the composition. Forms play one upon the other, building interest and vitality as the eye moves across the surface.

THE SOLIDITY of forms in the oil painting are enhanced by limiting the palette to dark, earthbound hues. The effect is strangely monumental, strangely disquiting.

This one man show proves Peter Koenig a talented young man. I look forward to seeing more of his work in the future.

A problem that can be present with available light photography is the inability to direct the light where you wish it to be.

This is a problem that is not easily eliminated but there are a few things that you can keep in mind to help reduce the problem.

FIRST OF ALL the only way that can solve this problem, and still stay in the realm of available light, is to use a reflector to turn the existing light rays onto the subject and thus fill in the heavy shadows.
