GI's Score High In Readjustment Following WWII

Seventeen years ago today, millions of GI's were "swooshing it out" in fox holes, gun turrets and almost every conceivable place from Adak to Australia. Our combat teams were poised for an invasion of Japan.

Then the war was over. The GI's started counting their "going home points," commenced planning just how to take up in civilian life where they left off. Could they carry the handicap of such a time loss in the very prime of their young lives?

They could and they did.

The 17th anniversary of V-J Day on Aug. 14 finds the average ex-GI of World War II to be 41-years-old, married with three children, an annual income or just under $5,000—and if he purchased it under the GI Bill's home loan guarantee plan—living in a home costing $14,500.

This is a "capsule look" at the 15,127,000 living World War II veterans, according to John S. Gleason, Jr., Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

A look at the record also shows that 87.6 percent of World War II veterans are living with their original wives. Another indication of "normal readjustment" to civilian life is the fact that 97.9 percent of World War II veterans are employed, according to latest available VA compilations.

Most of them are engaged in some phase of manufacturing, with trade, transport and construction following in that order. Seven percent live on farms and follow some branch of agriculture or animal husbandry.

GLEASON SAID, "This settled character of the average ex-GI and the lack of unrest common among veterans in some other nations is, I believe, due largely to the laws passed by Congress.

"These laws, which expressed the will of the American people, were designed to aid and speed the assimilation of the World War II servicemen into civilian ranks and community life," Gleason declared.

"It began before the war had actually ended with passage of the GI Bill and continues to the present day in a series of laws passed to benefit veterans and their dependents.

"Congress has aided veterans in

Bloomfield Hills Man To Head Company's American Subsidiary

W. E. Berge has been elected by the board of directors of C. E. Johansson, International to head their American subsidiary in Dearborn.

Latest plan of attack by the Vigilance Tax Committee opens Petition Drive

Berge, 191 Concord Drive, Bloomfield Hills, comes to the C. E. Johansson organization from Atlas-Copco, U.S., where he was division general manager, responsible for all marketing operations in the United States relative to their high-speed rotating tools and instruments.

His background includes a European education in both mechanical engineering and business administration, service in the Swedish Air Force during World War II, 11 years of mechanical engineering and 15 years experience in international sales and marketing operations in the European, Canadian, Central American and United States markets.

Vigilance Tax Committee Opens Petition Drive

Following debate, the committee agreed to hold the petition drive to force the State Legislature to call a referendum on the right of communities to levy an income tax.

When the petitions were modified to delete a section which called for a referendum on a state income tax, agreement was reached.

Since possible referendum on a state-wide income tax is becoming a state-wide political issue across both political parties the mayors decided not to become involved.

Signed petitions will be sent to Royal Oak Mayor William Hayward, chairman of the petition drive. A Nov. 15 deadline has been set for returning the petitions.

to handle these veterans programs VA has:

An annual budget of $5.5-billion and more than 170,000 employees spread through every state in the Union, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and an office in the Philippines.

Some 170 hospitals, 91 outpatient clinics, 67 regional offices, 18 domiciliarys for elderly veterans, three insurance centers, and the most modern automatic data processing equipment to carry on major programs with efficiency and speed.

A total of 18,000 full and part-time physicians connected with the medical program, more than 1,000 dentists, and some 14,000 nurses working in the largest organized nursing service in the world.

Claims and benefit files of more than 25,000,000 veterans of all wars—living and dead—in which there can be found nearly 8,000 "William Brown's." Similarly, there are 11,000 William Smith's listings and 133 John F. Kennedy entries.

GLEASON SAID "credit for the tremendous record of readjustment by the veterans of World War II goes to the young men and women who served in the conflict.

"Because of them, the nation survived in time of war and now they are providing strength and leadership in America's quest for a just and enduring peace.

"As Administrator of Veterans Affairs, I know full well the responsible ways the veterans have used their benefits to help themselves and to help America. They have made us richer and stronger at a time when we need that wealth and power."
