

Family Trio In N. H. Play

Three members of a Birmingham family took an active part in the production of Berthold Brecht's "Three Penny Opera" by the Barnstormers' Theater in Tamworth, N. H., recently.

Robert Bates lent his services as musical director while his daughter Linda played one of the leading roles, that of Polly Peachum. Robert Bates, Jr., — son and brother respectively — played the supporting role of Jake, one of Mack the Knife's men. Bates last year played a feature role in St. Dunstan's production of "Look Homeward, Angel."

enhance the beauty of a piece of property it is questioned that it is any more unightly than many of the things we homeowners construct either for the sake of utility or in the name of beauty.

A CITY SUCH as Birmingham does permit the erection of antennas with certain specifications which are both reasonable and just. Birmingham also has several supplementary systems of communication which could be brought into service in the event of disaster.

But what of some of the outlying subdivisions who are relying on either county or township protection? These are the very places which are in effect prohibiting emergency communications to their citizens.

It doesn't make sense that those areas with the poorest possibilities are the very ones who are denying themselves this wonderful service. It might be well for them to check communities like Ft. Meyers, Fla., or Texas City, Texas. These folks have a real appreciation for the type of work being done by the AREC.

THE OAKLAND County AREC net meets each Tuesday evening at 9 p.m. EST on a frequency of 29.00 megacycles. The short wave listener is invited to tune in and the local hams are urged to join in. Any ham located in Oakland County is most welcome to break into the net, whether or not he is a member of AREC.

Those hams who are not currently members can get the information easily and promptly by writing to this column in care of The Birmingham Eclectic or by breaking into the net on any Tuesday evening.

The fall sessions will be getting under way in September and many of the local hams participate in the weekly sessions.

THE AMATEURS of the area hope that it gives some comfort to our fellow citizens to know that an emergency system such as this is set up and operating, ready to go on a moment's notice. And — best of all — it takes no tax dollars to keep it functioning. Democracy in action!

Two Educators From Birmingham At MSU Workshop

Two educators from the Birmingham area took part in an "Instructional Materials" workshop at Michigan State University.

Dr. William Miller, 6038 Woodbank, Birmingham, director of the workshop, is an educational consultant for the Wayne County Board of Education. Attending the workshop was Jean W. Kennedy, 805 Wallace St., Birmingham, teacher at Crozer High School.

MSU holds the workshop every summer. It is designed to help administrators, classroom teachers, curriculum workers and school librarians keep abreast of the latest advances in teaching aids.
