Present Sonata Recital

In a sonata recital with violinist Mischa Mischkoff, concertmaster of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, at the Tuesday Musicale on Dec. 4 at the Detroit Institute of Arts was Walter Schrott, director of the Birmingham Conservatory of Music. Schrott is now on a brief visit with his family in Vienna. He is also president of the Detroit Musicians League and professor of music at Marygrove College in Detroit.

Potpourri

they get is the delighted laughter and shrieks of little children. But for them, that's reward enough for a labor of love. IF YOU'RE having a hard time figuring out where to spend your Christmas money, try the Birmingham Art Center. Santa Claus left some nice things over there for good little art lovers. You can see the annual members' show and buy sale items every day from 2 to 5 p.m. through Sunday.

Only One Adult In Ten Has Been On Package Tour

Less than one adult American in ten has ever been on a package tour—the type of travel where your fare, hotel and sightseeing accommodations are included in an established unit price. But most of the seven per cent of adults who have been on such

... tours speak favorably of them, say University of Michigan survey researchers find another in their series of travel market surveys. Freedom from worry and responsibility seem to be the principal appeal of package tours, explain Dr. John B. Lansing and William Ladd of the U-M Survey Research Center. Economy also is mentioned as an advantage, but less frequently. The principal complaint—and it is mentioned rarely—is that the little freedom.
