able discussion at the board's Jan. 16 meeting, received favorable action at Tuesday's session. Planners passed approval on a recommendation to the city commission for the replat of an area north of Harmon between Woodward and Woodland.

THE MODIFIED replat, originally requested by Builders Aten and Mason who are interested in constructing a development of five $20,000 to $25,000 homes in the area, calls for construction of a dead end loop street (cul-de-sac) which would pass in front of Paul T. Healy's home on Harmon.

Healy claims construction of the street, which Aten and Mason contend would be needed for access to the new homes, would deprive him of the proper clearance between his home and the street.

THE BOARD also approved a public hearing for the rezoning of lots No. 4 and 6, block 8, of Campbell Subdivision at the northeast corner of Hazel and Elm. The matter concerns a request of Dr. John P. Wood for rezoning from residential single family to non-retail business for the purpose of building a doctor's office.

This hearing is planned for the same time as the parking rezoning issue and will be announced later.

Mrs. John Lyster of Birmingham was in charge of refreshments.

Macomb, Genesee and Wayne counties.

When a woman in the audience said she was "unwilling to wait until 1970 to get this very important question resolved," Elliott said that if the new constitution is approved by the people it still couldn't take effect until 1964.

This plan was characterized by Lee Walker, the only Democrat delegate in the county as "throwing a bone to some areas, including Oakland County."

DELEGATE RICHARD C. Van Dusen of the fourth district said the committee on finance and taxation had decided against a graduated state income tax.

He was asked what the committee's thinking was in regard to municipalities levying an income tax.

He replied that the state legislature "should have broad freedom and cities should have freedom to determine the best method of taxation to more equitably spread the burden."

The feeling was, he stated, that nothing specific be said in the constitution on a flat rate income tax; rather that, if the legislature or a city decide to levy such a tax, it should have the power to do so.

DELEGATE AND Con-Con vice president George Romney said that at this point it appears the convention will come up with significant improvement over the old constitution—but he is still hoping for substantial improvement.

Romney was asked by a Washington, D.C., reporter whether he favored Federal aid to education as proposed by the Kennedy administration.

He told of a 1955 incident in which Detroit solved its own school problems by citizen action, and said it served as evidence that Federal aid to education is not necessary.

His reply that "this proved that the people in Detroit could raise the funds to meet Detroit's school needs" drew a big round of applause from the audience.

HENRY L. Woolfenden, third district delegate, said the judicial committee was in favor of ending the justice courts within five years and of establishing a single court system.

Other delegates participating in the forum were Ray King, second district, and Richard Kuhn, first district.

Serving as moderator was William T. McLaughy, an American Motors Corp. vice president and a resident of Bloomfield Hills.

Introducing Birmingham Mayor Florence H. Willet, he told of a metropolitan newspaper article which called her "the prettiest mayor in Michigan, and the brainiest, too."

This & That

doesn't run out (P.S. Altogether 'in said to exceed 200 millions) do you think that in 1968 it will be lobby Kennedy trying to succeed his brother, and in 1976 Teddy Kennedy, to complete the triumvirate Kennedy dynasty?" Mr. Smith wrinkled his brow for a moment, then, with characteristic wit quickly replied: "Well, that's a lot of man-power, isn't it?"

Just for future readers of The Eccentric: Let it be chronicled that for about two weeks during part of January, 1962, icy conditions prevailed over much of the southern Michigan landscape. For several days many schools had to be closed. Driving was hazardous. Freezing drizzles were the cause. (Some tried to blame it on one of the two famous "K's" — but, weathermen said that neither Kennedy nor Khrushchev had anything to do with the ice conditions—exclusive, of course, of diplomatic relations.)
