Advertising Club To Fete Five Top Notch Women

The Women's Advertising Club of Detroit announced plans to honor the metropolitan area's five outstanding women volunteer workers for 1962. At the same time the club called for metropolitan area residents to enter their nominations for volunteers whose unselfish dedication deserves special recognition.

The club will pay tribute to the women who work without pay at a "Women Who Care" luncheon-fashion show March 21 at Cobb Hall. The event will be part of Detroit's "Salute to Women Who Work Week", sponsored by the Central Business District Association.

AMONG the judges who will select the outstanding volunteers is Charles Debride Jr., executive director, of Hanna Street, Birmingham. Local resident working on the committee is Mrs. Julie Candler. Last year, Mrs. Robert Vander-Kloot was among the women honored as outstanding volunteer of 1961.

Letters of nomination should be mailed to Muriel Gillette, who is chairman of the "Women Who Care" luncheon, c/o J. Walter Thompson Company, 535 Griswold, Detroit 26.

DEADLINE for entries is March 14. They should give detailed information about the length and type of volunteer service in which the nominee has participated. Letters should also specify why the volunteer's contribution to charitable, civic or cultural projects is considered outstanding.
