Seaholm Maples

By PAM FARLOW
Special Writer

Seaholm students chosen to go abroad on the Michigan Council of Churches program have been selected. After studying the recommendations of the local screening committee and the records of those who were screened, letters of acceptance were sent to juniors Sue Fortenbaugh, Ken Todd, Janet Brookman and Sandy Strom. Those students will go to Ann Arbor to be interviewed for placement in homes abroad.

SEAHOLM'S BAND and orchestra are currently busy practicing for the individual and group festivals on March 3. The Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association has scheduled three separate contests: a solo and ensemble festival, an orchestra festival and a band festival.

The entire orchestra will play in the band and orchestra festival on Sunday, the band on March 3. Competing for a high rating will be 10 other school bands and orchestras. The groups are judged on their playing ability and well-known college teachers and professors of music will judge them and offer criticism. Seaholm's band, in the last 11 years, has rated no less than a "one"; the orchestra has received two ones.

FOR THE ANNUAL "Who's Who" section of the "Piper," Seaholm seniors recently nominated two classmates from their individual classrooms. This section of the "Piper" is a section which recognizes outstanding seniors.

After the nominations are in, the journalism department will prepare a ballot of the students receiving the most nominations. This will be circulated in senior honorariums, where each senior will choose two candidates. The 10 students with the most votes are then declared finalists.

This year, the number of students selected for this section will only be four because of the small size of the class. The four students finally elected will be chosen by a committee of Sue Koeneke, senior-section editor of the "Piper," three faculty members and a senior from Student Government.

WASHINGTON TRIP members at Seaholm recently attended a meeting in the Little Theater where questions concerning such areas as itineraries or luggage were answered by Mr. Hubbard, Geoff Gilbert and Greg Frontier, chairman of the two variety shows, asked for interested students to participate in the

Kingswood School

By JUDY WIANT
Special Writer

On Saturday, Kingswood School was open for Dad's Day. For the last few years, the fathers of Kingswood girls have visited Kingswood in the evening to attend the "Dad's Dinner."

This year, because many fathers have expressed the desire to see their daughters in the classroom, a new program has been instituted. Dad's Day duplicated a normal school day as much as possible. Classes were held from 8:30 to 12:30 and were each 30 minutes long. After lunch, the fathers were given tours of the school by some of the students.

Carolyn Hastings was in charge of the procees with Miss Louella Houser acting as the faculty advisor. To compensate for this extra day, school will be dismissed early on Friday.

ON FEB. 12, General Motors' "Preview of Progress" science show was presented during assembly. It was a live stage show which explained some of the new wonders in science.
