

Fit for a King — and a Queen

Torry Elementary School principal Don Burba fits crowns on Darcy Pockrant, 11, 1870 Hazel, and Steve Taylor, 11, 1438 Hazel, who were recently selected queen and king of the school's annual winter carnival coming up Saturday. The actual crowning of the two sixth graders will take place during carnival festivities scheduled for 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Main attraction of the carnival will be two shows at 12:30 and 1:30 p.m., featuring "The Great Viano," one of the world's greatest escape artists, who will present some of the famous "Houdini" acts. In addition to games, a white elephant sale, and a bake sale will be appearances by Ollie Spencer and Gail Coghill, formerly of The Detroit Lions, and Art Houtenan and Steve Gromek, formerly of The Detroit Tigers. Chairman of the carnival, sponsored by the Torry Parents-Teachers Association, is Mrs. Rita Allen, 1619 Cole, Birmingham.

VA Is Seeking Site Architect

The Veterans Administration Regional Office at Detroit is seeking a site planning landscape architect. The position offers work in a highly specialized field. Duties include review of land development plans submitted for approval under the Loan Guaranty program of the VA.

Seven years of professional and technical experience in the field of landscape architecture is required to qualify; however, a degree and/or graduate study in this field may be substituted for a portion of the experience. Application forms and detailed information may be obtained at the Personal Office of the VA Regional Office, 210 Gratiot at Library, Detroit 31.

STARTING SALARY is $7,500

Behind The Store Fronts

With ANGUS MCKELLAR

Mr. & Mrs. Mike Perinang of the husband and wife partnership of Michael's Delicacies, on the top of the hill, 708 N. Woodward, mentioned recently they were deeply appreciative of the fine reception extended to them since they opened their delicatessen and party food store last fall. The Perinangs are newcomers to the area only in a business sense, as they have made their home in Birmingham for a number of years.

We are glad to write that Bob Welch of the McLellan-Bull Co. is well on the road to recovery from the severe facial burns he suffered about three weeks ago when a water softened tank exploded.

A collector of rare books once said something to the effect that "a precious, moldering pleasure 'tis to meet an antique book, in just the most ordinary way." We would doubtless feel a close kinship to the hosts of present-day collectors of period or Early American furniture and accessories. "Everything from the past has historical significance," observed Michael Michaels who, (with Mrs. Michaels) is the proprietor of The Curiosity Shoppe, out Telegraph way.

"But, he continued, sometimes many Americans don't realize the rich heritage that is theirs to enjoy until they see a tour such as the one last week through the White House."

Mrs. Kennedy won many friends among Early Americana devotees that evening. Authentically old furniture and reproductions of some of the pieces she discussed are available locally.

The photographic display in the windows of the Birmingham Camera Shop is the lens work of Bob Osborn, which he took last spring on his way to Bellingham, Wash., 90 miles north of Seattle World's Fair. The details in the enlargements (from 35mm negatives) are worthy of a second (or third) glance.

Wigs, it seems, have suddenly become high fashion. Where previously they were mostly used for physical reasons, the new, hand-fitted ones lend themselves to many situations.

For instance, remarked Bernard, of Bernard's Beauty Salon, one can do a wig instead of changing a hair color; or, in the case of sudden visitors brought home from the office, perhaps, the lady may meet her guests with unruffled composure. And, they are particularly useful during the summer, Bernard added.

Bernard's is sole agent in this area for wigs produced in France and Germany by the House of Feder, which has been referred to as "the Tiffany" and "the Cadillac" of the hair piece trade.

All the wigs are made of the finest human hair, and are custom fitted. Delivery time is from three to six weeks. The public will have an opportunity to see 12 of Bernard Beauty Salon's models, all wearing high fashion wigs, at 10 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 24, on the House of Fashions show (Channel 7). Bernard owns six shops, two of which are in the Birmingham area: one on South Hunter (with 25 employees), and one newly acquired on W. Maple near Telegraph (with 12 employees).

Tom Mills, of Mills Pharmacy, tells us that the Fred Sanders Co. has selected his store as an outlet for their candies.

Hills Scouts Plan Court of Honor

Bloomfield Hills Boy Scout Troop 1036 will hold its first Court of Honor since its reactivation a year ago in the Cranbrook Institute of Science auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday.

A charter will be presented to James Newmeyer, chairman of the troop, by Dr. Paul Connolly, PTO president and institutional representative to troop 1036. Also presented will be membership cards to Richard Avery, scoutmaster, and Stephen T. Saunders and Philip Komosis, assistant scoutmasters.

Following the presentations, scouts will receive awards for advancement. A scout skit, written especially for the scout movement by Jack Combs of Campbell-Ewald Co., will follow.

Since this troop has been reorganized, it has more than doubled in membership and parent particicamping equipment and has recently been awarded a medal for the most outside camping days of any other troop in the area. Each of the four patrols has its own six-man winterized tent and camping equipment. On hand for the occasion will be several officers and dignitaries of Boy Scouting to view Scouting on a local level.
