'62 Tax Form Firm to Appeal Decision on 12 Town Drain Suit

Internal Revenue Commissioner Mortimer M. Caplin reminds taxpayers they should include their Social Security numbers if they have them, on their income tax returns and Declarations of Estimated Tax, both due by April 15, 1962.

Recent legislation authorizes the Internal Revenue Service to require taxpayers to furnish information necessary for assignment of identifying numbers to them. Numbers so assigned are required to be included by taxpayers on their returns. This system is now being installed.
 For an individual taxpayer, this identifying number will be his social security number.

CAPLIN SAID that some 90 per cent of all taxpayers have been regularly entering their Social Security numbers on their returns, and they should continue to do so.

He said the Service is undertaking to supply number application forms to taxpayers who have never had a social security number, or rather than contact Internal Revenue or Social Security independently. Persons requiring a Social Security number for employment purposes should, of course, apply in the regular way.

CAPLIN SAID taxpayers, who do not have numbers, should file their returns without numbers and await receipt of this application rather than contact Internal Revenue or Social Security independently. Persons requiring a Social Security number for employment purposes should, of course, apply in the regular way.
