

It Was a Night to Remember

Bloomfield Country Day School honored its two girl graduates, Janet Polk and Sue Jordan (from left), at one of the prettiest parties of the season Friday night at Bloomfield Hills Country Club. Named the Rose Ball, young people danced in a bower of petal pink flowers lighted by twinkling strands of miniature rosebud bulbs. The girls' escorts were Russ Read (left) and Richard Haughton.

Steve Fairbanks, Dianne Richardson, Dave Seed and Maggie Pioch (from left) took time out from dancing during the evening, perched themselves on a porch window ledge and watched proceedings. Numerous progressive dinner parties were given before the ball, at the climax of which breakfast was served at the club. Graduation exercises took place Sunday afternoon in Redeemer Lutheran Church, with Mayor Florence Willett the speaker.

Nowadays, a girl at a dance no longer has trouble with her feet because, with that first downbeat, off come the shoes, on comes the Twist. Jim Nunnellej gallantly replaces Kathie LeMessurier's slipper following a bout on the dance floor.
